Just a Little Sunlight. The Prosperous 16,000. You Can't Breed Genius. Important Baby Coming.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

A LITTLE SUNLIGHT came filtering through dark business clouds yesterday.

Business failures in July carried smaller liabilities than for the same month a year ago.

The stock market, which reflects men's prosperity opinions, was more cheerful.

TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND that had been idle in Detroit went back to work, half of them for Henry Ford, the other 100,000 for the General Motors truck factory, Packard and other concerns.

IN ONE OF RACINE'S tragedies, the lady says to her husband: Ne veuillez pas vous perdre, et vous etes sauve, which means "Don't try to destroy yourself, and you are saved."

Somebody ought to say that to American business. Its troubles are largely born of its own fears.

"THE PEOPLE'S lobby" at Washington, busy protecting the 120,000,000 busy elsewhere, says to Mr. Edison.

"You are good at asking questions. Answer these five, for a change."

Part of one question is:

"Do you think America can be prosperous with one per cent of the people owning three-fifths of the wealth, and less than 16,000 people getting an eighteenth of the national income, etc?"

ONE ANSWER to that might read:

"When the 120,000,000 get ready to think, use their brains and their votes, they will improve their condition.

"Meanwhile, they will contribute to the 16,000 that do think, or hire corporation lawyers, members of Congress and other officials to think and work for them."

SIEGFRIED WAGNER, son of the great Richard, died yesterday. Eugenists, stirpiculturists and others who believe that better human beings can be bred as we breed better horses, will admit that he was a disappointment.

His father was the third greatest musician. His mother, Cosima Wagner, was the daughter of the great musician, Liszt.

And, as a musician, Siegfried Wagner amounted to nothing, although he did write operas, and was a moderately good conductor.

Genius, apparently, "just happens."

THE DUCHESS OF YORK, who married a son of King George, is at Glamis Castle, in Scotland, celebrating her thirtieth birthday, with Sir Henry Simson, distinguished obstetrician, quartered in the castle, and the home secretary, J. R. Clynes, on the way there.

The home secretary must be present at a royal birth, to testify that everything was in order, and that the birth was a real one.

He couldn't possibly recognize the baby in a year. Finger printing would be better, but the British are conservative.

THESE ARE news items, each with a thought.

Another earthquake, following many, shook the Italian cities of Melfi and Rio Nero, scattering buildings, causing panic.

IN INDIA a small band of Mohammedans held up 15,000 Hindus and killed several of them. The Hindus were marching past a Mohammedan Mosque, annoying the Mohammedans. Britain can always count on Mohammedans to divert the Hindu mind from "British misrule."

BOOTLEG LIQUOR is efficient. Two men drank "genuine, pre-war rye whisky" in a New York speakeasy, disguised as a toy shop.

One dropped dead at the bar. The other walked to the sidewalk and died there.

The speakeasy owner is arrested.

ALBERT COATES, at Cyrus H. K. Curtis' request, names the 50 greatest composers.

Mr. Coates, excellent musician, thanks to alphabetical order, puts Bach first, Beethoven second. Beethoven should be first, although he called Bach greater than himself, saying that his name, Bach, which means "brook," should have been "Ocean."

Wagner comes third, although not third in Mr. Coates' list, and the rest are nowhere, in comparison.

JIGGERS, A SMALL DOG, property of Mrs. Caulker, bit another lady three times, New Jersey justice sentenced the dog to immediate death. His owner ran screaming from the courtroom, then hid the dog, and refuses to tell where he is.

The lady bitten three times is not satisfied.

RECENTLY, OUR fine battleship Utah, competing with all the ships in our Navy, won the prize for greatest efficiency.

And this fall, the Utah, Wyoming and Florida will all be scrapped, in accordance with the London Naval Treaty.

Practically, it matters little, since we only lose, in case of war, three targets for airplanes.

But can you imagine anything sillier than destroying battleships that cost forty to fifty million dollars each, in obedience to foreign orders, and then proceeding to spend one billion dollars on cruisers with six-inch guns that, according to our ablest Navy officers, will do us no good when we get them?

PITTSBURGH YOUTH HELD IN KILLING

Accuses Former Schoolmate Here as One Who Shot Brookline Officer in Fight

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Thomas Healy, 19, of Pittsburgh, was arrested by New York police today as a suspect in the killing of Patrolman Joseph P. O'Brien at Brookline, Mass., last night.

Healy, according to police, told them that Paul Hurley, a former classmate at St. Mary's School, Pittsburgh, fired the shots which killed the patrolman.

Healy said that he arrived in Boston last Friday for a two weeks' vacation with Hurley. The latter, however, lost his job as bellboy at a Boston hotel and the pair soon were without funds.

STEAL AUTO

Stealing an automobile in Brookline Sunday, they scouted about the city for a likely looking place to rob. Finally they decided on a drug store and were waiting outside for some customers to leave when Patrolman O'Brien became suspicious and started questioning them.

Hurley and the patrolman began to fight, the officer finally drawing his revolver and firing two shots, which went wild, according to Healy. Hurley then drew his pistol and fired four shots at the policeman, killing him.

Healy was arrested when he

Senate Begins Final Inquiry Into State Primary; McGovern in Attendance

By E. P. O'BRIEN,
Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Four Pittsburghers were ready to tell the Senate Investigating Committee late today what they know about expenditures in the May primary.

Senator Gerald P. Nye announced at the noon recess of the hearing which began this morning that those to be heard from Pittsburgh and the order in which they will be called are Howard W. Bennett, member of the Judge James R. Macfarlane's special recount board; County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern, Attorney Ralph H. Frank and Walter Bonitz, brick manufacturer, who contributed $97,500 to the Davis-Brown campaign fund.

State Senator James J. Coyne and Attorney Edward O. Spotts, who are at the hearing, were not mentioned by Senator Nye.

ARMSTRONG ABSENT

County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, Attorney E. Lowry Humes and Judge Macfarlane, who was in charge of the ballot recount following the primaries, were excused from appearing at this time. All were reported away on vacations or business.

The other witnesses heard to-

HEAT RELIEF SLIGHT; NO SHOWERS

Drought Continues With Mercury Somewhat Lower; 5,000 Youths Go on Duty

Boy Scouts throughout Allegheny County—5,000 strong—were asked to assist in detecting and fighting grass fires which have taxed city and borough fire departments and which have endangered many communities.

No rain to relieve the drought or lessen the danger is expected today, according to the Weather Bureau, although slightly cooler temperatures were prevailing.

Yesterday's high mark was 99 degrees, 7 degrees below the high record set on August 6, 1918.

The official thermometer climbed steadily throughout the day. At 8 o'clock it registered 75 degrees, and at 10 o'clock it was eight degrees higher. By 3 o'clock it registered 89.

Dr. James S. Hamniers, superintendent of the City Home at Mayview, on the recommendation of Dave McDonald, superintendent of city stables, today ordered all live stock at the city home to be brought in from pastures which the drought has made worthless.

MAYVIEW CROPS PERILED

Concern was also felt at Mayview for crops in the fields, and unless rain falls soon a large loss of produce is anticipated.

Fire Chief Richard L. Smith said today he would appeal to the Allegheny Council of Boy Scouts for assistance. Joseph A. Brunton, associate director of the local council, said he would have 5,000 scouts on guard by this afternoon.

Chief Smith has also asked Superintendent of Police Peter P. Walsh to issue a general order to all stations asking patrolmen to direct special attention to grass

Kauffmann, of Pittsburgh, winner for the last three years of the National Public Links golf title, was one of the late starters in the ninth annual titular competition here today. The field of 114 is playing the first half of the 36-hole qualifying round today. The 32 low scorers for 36 holes continue at match play on Thursday, with the champion being decided in a 36-hole final on Saturday.

He revealed that much today in a letter to W. H. Bradshaw, president of the Jackson Country Club, in declining an invitation to enter a golf tourney here. He wrote:

"Further than the actual loss of time involved, there is the added fact that I'm now a bit jaded with golf. I expect to be absolutely fed up on the game by the end of September."

Coolidge Sees 2½ Cent Postage—or Economy

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 5.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The appropriation of public money always is perfectly lovely until some one is asked to pay the bill. If we are to have a billion dollars of Navy, half a billion of farm relief, four hundred millions of Mississippi flood control, two or three hundred millions of river and harbor improvements, two or three hundred millions of public buildings, hundreds of millions of good roads and other hundreds of millions of pensions, the people will have to furnish more revenue by paying more taxes. It is for them, through their Congress, to decide how far they wish to go.

Calvin Coolidge.

Already Postmaster General Brown has announced that he will recommend two and one-half cent letter postage. That may be a logical proposal for, if two-cent postage was reasonable in 1900, by all the standards of costs a half cent more is reasonable now. The old motives for transporting communications at a loss have mostly disappeared. The postoffice ought to be self-supporting. At present business men are deluged with useless mail. For those who cannot finance five cents worth of stamps, a two and one-half cent piece can be coined. The alternative is governmental economy. The action of the Congress will be interesting.

CALVIN COOLIDGE.

DOG RACE BETS CONTINUE

Racing and betting continued at the Guyasuta Kennel Club track, Blawnox, last night, while bookies stood around in groups laying odds against the dogs, vieing to see who could "spot" reporters first.

Five county detectives—H. S. Barker, J. W. Carmichael, C. H. Stewart, P. R. Goldberg and L. A. Kline—assigned to the track by the district attorney to stop gambling, reported to the acting chief of county detectives that they found no gambling.

Prominent among the handful of spectators was Alderman John J. Verona, political power of the Hill district. He apparently was interested in the dogs, but not the betting.

The dogs didn't stir up much interest. Of the nine races, only the sixth aroused enthusiasm. In that contest, Buddie Meadows, No. 2 dog, favorite in the books, flashed home several lengths in front.

A special policeman apparently was detailed to watch those suspected of being reporters, to trail them to telephones, to listen to conversations.

Money changed hands frequently, but with attempted secrecy. Bets were made on odds taken from a master book, which passed the rounds regularly. Money never was flashed, seldom sighted. The betting was not general and seemed to be confined to professionals.

Youth Jumps Off Bridge To Death

An unidentified, red-haired young man, on whose belt buckle was stamped the letter R, paused on the Twenty-second Street Bridge this afternoon, glanced at a newspaper in his hand and then jumped into Monongahela River, still holding the paper.

His body was recovered 15 minutes later with grappling hooks by two employes of the Iron City Sand Company—John Kimbell and Floyd Weess. They said the drowned man was known on the South Side as "Red" Rogers.

In his clothes were a street car pass, three cents and a key.

Coolidge Resurrects Diverting Wind Mill

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Back to his farm house homestead for a brief visit, Calvin Coolidge has been provided with a diversion. 2 PLANES MAKE MAIL PICKUPS

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 5.—Men prominent in civic and aviation affairs yesterday witnessed the inauguration of the Adams Airmail Pickup at the Municipal Airport here, when Pilots Trow Sebree, flying a mail plane from Cleveland, and Lowell Serginus, in a ship from Pittsburgh, made successful pickups.

Pick-up service also was established at Bradford Field, New Castle.

The apparatus, invented by Dr. L. C. Adams, of Denver, is a "V" shaped chute, in which mail to be picked up is placed and caught by a device at the end of a 90-foot cable dropped from the airplane. The plane deposits a bag of mail and picks another in its place while flying at a high speed.

Among those witnessing the inauguration were Congressman J. Howard Swick, Clifford Ball, of the Clifford Ball Lines; H. B. McCray and C. W. Calvin, Beaver Falls councilmen; Dr. William C. Cook, H. H. Murray, C. B. Matheney, Harry Ackley, Walter Goetmann, county commissioner of Beaver County; Art Coombs, Harry Traver, secretary of the Traver Aviation Company; Robert Contes, and R. S. Blackwood, president of the Beaver Falls Airport Corporation.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Boatswain Lewis E. Pratt, of the Salisbury Beach Coast Guard station, was fatally wounded by bullets from another Coast Guard boat out of Gloucester, last night, when his surf boat was mistaken for a rum runner near the mouth of Ipswich River, Ipswich, Mass. Early reports had indicated that the shots were fired from a rum vessel.

Cannon Candidate's Backers Lose Vote

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Virginia Democrats who voted for William Moseley Brown for governor last November are ineligible to vote in today's primary, according to a decision of State Attorney General John R. Saunders. Brown was the candidate of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, against Gov. Pollard, the winner.

3 City Firemen Arrested As Onions, Tubers Fly

Fire Captain Paddie Carroll and two of his firemen-friends, Charles Geis and Albert Zimmerman, of No. 2 Engine Company, went to jail for a few minutes today, while Lawrence Goodman, who conducts a fruit and fish store at 2136 Wylie avenue, gathered up the wreckage outside the store.

There were onions and potatoes and pop bottles to be recovered from the street.

The firemen were arrested on disorderly conduct charges which automatically suspend them.

Goodman called the police after the enthusiastic firemen had pushed over his stand and one of them had demanded Goodman pay a $2 debt. Goodman accused them of being intoxicated, the merchant complained.

ANTI-DRY LANDSLIDE LOOMS AS STATES GIRD FOR VOTE

DRINKING UP TO CITIZENS --WOODCOCK

Prohibition Director, in Radio Talk, Admits Individual's Right to Decide on Liquor

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Prospects of a wholesale overturning of dry votes in Congress to the anti-prohibition column loomed today as the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and allied organizations girded for battles in states where referendums on the issue will be held this fall.

Already three states—Rhode Island, Massachusetts and Illinois—have completed preliminary requirements for a separate vote on prohibition.

Similar steps are under way in Colorado and North Dakota, with foes of Volsteadism pressing for referendums in other states.

ADMITS CITIZENS' RIGHT

Massachusetts will vote on whether the state prohibition enforcement act should be repealed. An affirmative answer by the people will be, in effect, instruction to the state legislature to pass the repeal act. Dry Republican members of the national House of Representatives have indicated they will be governed by the referendum.

Scrapping the whole theory of dry dictation of personal habits that has surrounded enforcement for 10 years, Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock last night admitted the citizen's right to decide for himself about liquor buying and drinking.

"STRATEGIC RETREAT"

He spoke over a National Broadcasting Company hookup.

Woodcock's address, with his new enforcement plans, plainly indicated that federal concentration on the commercial liquor traffic will be carried to the length of ignoring all minor infractions of the law.

It signalized a strategic retreat, joined in by leading dry organizations which recently announced for the first time opposition to "the invasion of homes and the infringement of personal rights."

GLOBE GIRDLERS FLYING TO N. Y.

AMARILLO, Tex., Aug. 5.—(INS.)—In search of a new globe-girdling record, Ted Lundgren and W. L. Stiles, of Los Angeles, took off here today for New York.

They had dropped down last night after being overtaken by darkness, which forced them to shorten the first leg of their round-the-world flight by several hundred miles. Original plans called for an initial stop at Kansas City.

They expected to reach New York without a halt en route.

AVIATRIX SETS SPEED RECORD

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Florence Lowe Barnes, San Marino aviatrix, today had bettered the recognized speed record for women by piloting her Mystery "S" ship 196.19 miles an hour.

The flight was clocked by Joe Nikrent, official timer for the National Aeronautic Association. The earlier record of 184.6 miles an hour, held by Amelia Earhart, also was established here.

Nikrent said the Barnes barograph would be sent to Washington for official calibration.

300 Czech Planes Fly in Maneuvers

OLOMOUC, Czecho-Slovakia, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Three hundred airplanes in the darkness last night engaged in maneuvers over this town, with camouflaged land batteries assisting the "defending" force.

Inhabitants were forbidden to leave their homes during the night. During the day a bombing squadron of "Blues" were declared to have been put out of action by defending "Red" airplanes.

Fugitive's Freedom Ended by Hunger

GRAFTON, W. Va., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Hunger brought Walter Brown, Birmingham, Ala., back into custody after he had escaped from a Taylor County road gang while working out a $13 fine.

He was arrested after a grocery clerk reported that Brown had presented a $100 bill in payment for food. The clerk said he refused the bill and that Brown then presented a five.

GLOVES LINK 2 GANG MURDERS

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—With a left-handed glove as their dominant clue, police today were seeking to connect the murder of Jack Zuta, reputed vice and liquor lord, with that of Alfred (Jake) Lingle, Chicago Tribune reporter.

The glove, found near the dance hall at Delafield, Wis., where Zuta was assassinated Friday, resembles one discovered near the scene of the Lingle slaying.

Chicago police were in Waukesha, Wis., today with photographs of a number of Chicago gangsters, including Ted Newberry, a Moran adherent, and Sam Hunt, a henchman of the Al Capone gang. These were to be shown to witnesses of the Zuta murder.

The fear of swift vengeance which has marked the demeanor of witnesses in other underworld killings already has silenced those who saw Zuta slain, as well as all other persons who might throw some light on the crime, the police claim.

Priest Saves Holy Vessels From Fire

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—A priest braved flames which swept the interior of his church yesterday to rescue sacred vessels from the altar.

A stream of water was directed down the smoke-filled aisle as the priest, the Rev. Father Edward Doe, groped his way. Firemen had cautioned him not to enter. Flames had started to cut off his exit when he emerged, carrying the vessels.

Baby Taken Along With Parents In Dry Raid

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—An eight months old baby and its parents were back at home today after zealous members of the police vice squad had taken all three to the station house on a liquor law violation charge.

The parents, Charles E. Nelson, 29, and his wife, Pauline, 23, were arrested as the husband was allegedly unloading liquor in an alley within a few feet of the police court building. The woman had her baby in her arms, so the police took it along.

HOOVER ISSUES UP IN 4 STATES

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—The Hoover administration's plan of farm relief and prohibition were put to the test today as voters of four states—Virginia, West Virginia, Kansas and Missouri—trooped to the polls in the first of a series of important primary elections during the torrid summer season.

Ex-Senator Neely will be nominated for the Senate by the Democrats in West Virginia, while there is a scramble for the Republican nomination.

Five candidates want the Republican nomination for the seat made vacant by retirement of Senator Guy D. Goff, Republican. One of the five candidates, Benjamin L. Rosenbloom, is running as anti-dry.

The race for the Republican honor appears to be between Col. James E. Jones, of Switchback, and Harry Shaw, of Fairmount.

Panamans Honor Retiring Gen. Craig

PANAMA CITY, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Panama's official farewell was paid last night to Maj. Gen. Malin Craig, retiring chief of the Panama Canal department.

At a dinner given by President Arosemena a large electric sign was displayed with the Spanish words:

"Panama will remember you."

President Arosemena, in his address, declared:

COUNTRY FACES DAIRY FAMINE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—With the dairy industries of 14 key states wrecked beyond the possibility of recovery, the nation faces the worst milk and butter shortage in many years—possibly in its history—the Federal Farm Board declares.

William F. Schilling, its dairy member, says a famine in dairy products not only is imminent but actually in existence. The damage to milk herds is so vast, he avers, that no amount of rainfall now could help it.

Cattle, he added, are emaciated and half-starved.

Unless general rains fall in the Middle West, South and East within 30 days, the nation will be threatened with a major catastrophe, Louis J. Taber, head of the National Grange, told President Hoover yesterday.

Appealing for the President to exert every facility to aid the farmers in their plight, Taber declared the situation more serious than the country realizes.

GERMANS QUIT OCEAN FLIGHT

REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—Lack of a suitable landing place in Greenland and non-arrival of special gasoline supply for their tiny plane today had cancelled the Berlin-to-Chicago stop-over flight of Wolfram Hirth and Oscar Weller, German aviators.

Keenly disappointed by failure of their project through unforeseen circumstances, Hirth boxed his plane and sailed for Montreal aboard the liner Minnedosa, intending to fly from Canada to New York. Weller will embark for Germany on the next ship leaving port.

Fire Destroys W. Va. Town; 1,000 Routed

GORE, Va., Aug. 5.—(INS.)—Fire that started early today in the postoffice wiped out the mountain city of Gore with the exception of its bank building, and caused the 1,000 inhabitants, including hundreds of women and children to flee from their homes in their night clothing.

Residents believe robbers who broke into the postoffice, started the fire which spread quickly. The damage was estimated at $500,000.

Tony Can't Keep Roll Safe; Banks, Trees Fail Him

DUNBAR, Pa., Aug. 5.—The $287 in cash which Tony Geldenson drew out of a Connellsville bank last week has caused him much worry and now Tony does not know whether he still has it or not.

On the advice of a friend who told him the bank was soon to close, Tony drew the money from a Connellsville institution. The bank was closed the following day. That night Tony hid the money in a mattress in his home. The neighbor did the same with $1,485 cash he had withdrawn, but the neighbor's home was burned and that money was lost.

Taking warning at this latest incident, Tony then hid his cash in a tree in the yard. Lightning struck the tree and it burned, but Tony rescued the money. The cash was hidden again in the house. Friday it was taken to Vanderbilt and placed in a bank. Saturday the Vanderbilt bank closed its doors.

4 PITTSBURGH LEADERS AT NYE QUIZ

day were from Harrisburg and Philadelphia.

Senator Nye, at the start of the hearing, said he hopes to make this the final investigation prior to the November election and that he hopes to finish this session today.

The first witness called was George Geasey, member of Philadelphia's special recount board. He was questioned at great length on the method of operation of the board.

PHILADELPHIA ERRORS

The recount of votes in Philadelphia County so far has revealed 21,261 ballot errors, S. Davis Wilson, deputy county controller and a Pinchot campaign manager, told the committee.

Wilson said these errors had occurred in 92 voting divisions.

Greasey said that most of the errors had been due to multilated ballots. Some ballots, he said, had erasure marks and were thrown out.

Senator Nye announced that committee investigators had learned that Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who won the Republican senatorial nomination, had lost 1,832 votes on the recount while Senator Joseph R. Grundy had gained 30 votes.

The figures cited by Nye showed Davis lost 2,195 votes in 211 boxes and gained 363 in 20 boxes, a net loss of 1,832. Grundy, he added, lost 402 votes in 107 districts, and gained 544 votes in 73, a net gain of 142.

BROWN LOST

Nye also announced that Francis Shunk Brown, gubernatorial candidate, had lost 2,054 votes in the same precincts while Gifford Pinchot, who won the Republican gubernatorial nomination, gained 183 votes.

Nye asked Geasey:

"Don't you believe there was a concerted effort by the Brown-Davis people to alter votes in Philadelphia in favor of these two candidates?"

"I don't believe so."

"Don't you think the similarity in the losses recorded for Davis and Brown showed such an effort?"

"I don't believe it does."

CHARGES FRAUD

Wilson went in detail into what he termed the "ramifications of utility controlled bosses, manipulations of elections, and control of the minor judiciary." He said there was evidence to show "concerted action by election officials to credit votes to their favorite candidate and take away from others."

Where erasures were made and new marks substituted, invariably they were favorable to the Brown-Davis ticket and against Pinchot and Francis Bohlen, anti-dry candidate, he said. He added:

"To give the impression that these were technical errors is entirely unfair."

The witness paid a tribute to the Philadelphia city administration and also to the Senate Investigation Committee. The police, Wilson said, maintained order at the polls, and the general behavior at the voting places was good, probably because the Senate had observers in Philadelphia on election day.

WANTED BROWN

He declared the Vare organization in Philadelphia, which gave Secretary Davis a large plurality, was not particularly interested in the United States senatorship, but honestly desired to bring about the nomination of Brown. In amplification of his assertion, Wilson said a governor has extensive appointing authority, which would be of more benefit to them than the senatorship.

The Vare leaders in Philadelphia, he declared, were expected to poll a uniform vote for all candidates on the ticket. He accused the city organization of making it difficult for independent voters to register.

The Philadelphia organization, he continued, had injected the prohibition issue into the general election campaign to cover up local conditions. Vare leaders, he said, had pre-empted the Liberal party ticket for the purpose of form a coalition with the Democrats.

Charges that students at the Westchester State Teachers' College voted in the May Republican senatorial primary in Pennsylvania in violation of state laws were made before the committee by F. S. Wood, a Westchester manufacturer, and an alumnus of the school.

BRITISH HOPE MALE HEIR TO CROWN

Stork Due at York's Castle Momentarily, as Duchess Observes 30th Birthday

By ROBERT WELLES RITCHIE.
Universal Service.

LONDON, Aug. 5. — The child awaited by the Duchess of York is expected to be born shortly, probably tomorrow or Thursday.

This was indicated when the home secretary, J. R. Clynes, whose presence at the birth or death of a member of the royal family is mandatory, arrived at Glamis Castle, Scotland, this morning.

It is at Glamis, ancient family seat of the Earls of Strathmore and Kinghorne, who are the ancestors of the duchess, that the child, whom the nation hopes will prove to be a male heir presumptive to the throne, is to be born.

The duchess' thirtieth birthday was marked yesterday by a quiet family gathering in the old baronial hall. The only outsider present was Sir Henry Simson, eminent obstetrician, who is in constant attendance upon the duchess.

Meanwhile, the attention of the British empire is centered upon the turreted feudal fortress dating from the eleventh century. A special telephone wire connects the castle with King George and Queen Mary at Cowes, Isle of Wight, where they have gone to enter the royal yacht, Britannia, in regatta week activities.

U. S. Episcopalians Repay Scots by Cathedral Gift

ABERDEEN, Scotland, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—As a result of a kindly act of certain bishops in Aberdeen nearly 150 years ago, American churchmen have raised $1,000,000 to build a new and fitting cathedral for the city.

The existing cathedral, they consider, is unworthy of the inhabitants.

Several American bishops attending the Lambeth conference are to see the laying of the foundation stone August 15, with Bishop Perry, the presiding bishop of the American Episcopal Church, performing the ceremony.

It was in 1783 that the American church held its first convention and appointed its first bishop, who, however, was unable to obtain consecration in England because he would have had to swear allegiance to the English crown. In consequence, Scottish bishops performed the ceremony in Aberdeen.

To show their appreciation, American churchfolk have been collecting contributions since early in 1914, to replace the present cathedral, which is little larger than an ordinary church.

The children of the American church have contributed $75,000 from their savings.

SARA M. SOFFEL

Miss Soffel, one of the first women admitted to the bar (Allegheny County, 1916), who has been appointed Pennsylvania first woman county judge.

FRIENDS HAIL HONOR TO WOMAN

First of Sex in State to Be Named Judge; Father, 88, Weeps Over News

Sara M. Soffel, of Pittsburgh, first woman in the state to ascend to the judiciary, had messages of congratulations awaiting her today in a fishing shack on Big Cranberry Island, off the coast of Maine, to which she is en route on a vacation trip. The announcement of the appointment of Miss Soffel, former school teacher and daughter of former Alderman Jacob Soffel, of Mt. Washington, to succeed Judge Sylvester Snee as judge of the County Court, was made from Gov. Fisher's office in Harrisburg yesterday.

Miss Soffel received word of it in Wilkes-Barre, she telephoned relatives last night.

Miss Soffel, one of three daughters, is a lover of the outdoors, a devoted daughter to her aged father, and has devoted practically her whole life to public matters.

TAKES UP LAW

After being graduated from Wellesley College, in 1908, she returned to Pittsburgh to begin teaching Latin in old Central High School. After three or four years of teaching she became interested in law as a career and took up her studies in the University of Pittsburgh, obtaining her degree a few years later and giving up school teaching for a private practice.

She served as assistant city solicitor under Mayor William A. Magee in his last term of office and then returned to private practice, becoming associated with Albert G. Liddell, in the Union Trust Building.

HEADS WOMEN'S BUREAU

Last year she received appointment as head of the Bureau of Women and Children, under the State Department of Labor and Industry. She still holds this office.

Miss Soffel, who lives with her two sisters, the Misses Catherine and Phoebe Soffel, and her father, Jacob Soffel, at 16 Greenbush avenue, spends a great deal of her leisure in the outdoors. Her hobby when at home is a backyard garden, which she has cultivated to the joy of her father who spends much of his time in an easy chair among the shrubs and bushes.

FATHER OVERJOYED

It was in this garden spot that a reporter found him yesterday. Told of his daughter's appointment, he was so overjoyed that he broke into tears. He is in his eighty-eighth year, and has been an invalid nearly 10 years.

Judge Soffel's sister, Catherine, is principal of the American Avenue Public School, and Phoebe, her other sister, looks after the father's real estate and insurance business in Mt. Washington.

Gov. Fisher had this to say of his appointee:

"I appointed Miss Soffel primarily on account of her fitness for the position. Her new position will have much to do with domestic relations problems, which her work in the Department of Labor and Industry indicates she is well able to handle. Her record in her profession both as a trial attorney and counsel recommend her. She had the backing of no political organization in Allegheny County.

ALL HELD, DESPITE 'FIXERS'

Swoop Comes Jusut Before 'Fast Number' Turns Up; 'Winners' Trying to Collect

Police today raided an alleged lottery headquarters at 717 Lyceum Building, reported to be backed by politicians, arrested six men and two boys and confiscated number writing equipment, they reported.

The raid came a few minutes before what bookies term a "fast number"—one that is often played because it has proved to be a winner—was declared to be today's lucky number in the clearing house pool.

Other lottery headquarters were beseiged by players today when the winning number was announced. Many holders of "lucky" numbers failed to collect.

HAVE INSPIRED RAIDS

Numbers headquarters have been accused on several occasions of inspiring raids on their own establishments when it became evident that they would have to pay out large sums. With records seized in the raids, they contend they have nothing on which to pay off.

Philip Goldberg, 41, of 2913 Shady avenue, was arrested charged with operating a lottery. The others were charged with visiting a gambling house.

Plainclothesmen Matt McGraw and John Dillon, on orders of Inspector Albert Beebe, walked into the place, they reported, a few minutes after the men had turned in their receipts.

Before the sergeant at Central Station had entered the names on the record, four reputed "fixers" arrived and were said to have made a futile plea to Beebe to release the alleged visitors.

FORFEITS ORDERED

The seven were ordered to post $30 forfeit each pending hearings tomorrow before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg. They gave their names as Frank Grosson, 20, of 1111 Gilmore street; Raymond West, 23, of 1608 Duff street; James J. Blout, 34, of 1203 Arch street; Joseph Bales, 28, of 5552 Dalton street; Fred Bowers, 15, of 1337 Lake street; William Scott, 16, of 441 South Main street, and Jacob Viegler, 53, of 641 Madison avenue, McKeesport.

Goldberg was required to post $2,500 bail.

"Mollie Maley," of 6400 Frankstown avenue, was named by Nicklos Amen, 30, of 7405 Hermitage street, in East End Police Court today as the man to whom he turned in receipts from numbers writing.

Magistrate W. J. Soost ordered Amen held until police investigated "Maley," believed to be a boss clearing house pool operator.

PAIR ARRESTED

Amen and Joseph Lazara, 29, of 458 Cedar avenue, were arrested early today in the rear of 200 South Highland avenue, counting small change, detectives testified. Lazara testified he was employed by a man known as "Al" in Bloomfield. He was fined $50.

Palmer Schrello, of 1010 Wylie avenue, arrested near 6000 Penn avenue, carrying a small sum in cash, admitted being a collector for the clearing house pool. He said he paid to a man named "George," of whom he knew nothing. He was fined $100 with the alternative of serving 60 days in jail.

Models of 'Gay Nineties' Revived in Paris Ateliers

By ALICE LANGELIER

International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—Fashions for women reverted with a 40-year back jump to the styles of the "Gay Nineties" as the eagerly-awaited creations of the famous courturiers of Paris were displayed to hundreds of foreign buyers today.

"Leg o' mutton" sleeves, barrel muffs and abbreviated fur capes gave the fashion parades in the various ateliers the air of historical pageants. As in McKinley's time, if these designers have their way, milady of 1931 will be obliged to gather up her skirts and once again her dainty feet will be "like little mice" peeping in and out.

For many of the most favored creations have long, swirling skirts and long trains, presaging another possible "revolt" against the Parisian dictum by dress designers in other parts of the world who press for re-emancipation of women from the voluminous gowns of another era.

Patou burst upon the horizon with a startling "peekaboo" cocktail frock, one of the most startling creations shown. The frock features a daring "open-front" bodice, joined at the neck and waist, and fashioned of bottle green crepe.

The majority of afternoon and evening gowns are excessively long, but sports and morning frocks are pretty much the same as last year.

Southern Blonde Defends American Beauty Title

GALVESTON, Tex., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—A golden-haired 17-year-old New Orleans high school girl is America's defending champion in the annual international pageant of pulchritude here.

The girl who was the judges' unanimous selection as "Miss United States of America" last night is Miss Dorothy Dell Goff. She will compete tonight against seven European entrants for the title "Beauty Queen of the Universe."

The girl who, in the judges' opinion, approached the most nearly American ideals of beauty is five feet six inches in height and weighs 122 pounds. Her hair is long, and her figure described as "girlish."

Miss New Orleans' two appearances last night with the 31 other American entrants, once in evening gown and once in bathing costume, brought prolonged cheers. Among the others approved loudly by the crowd was Miss Helen Hannan as Miss New Jersey.

Miss New Orleans, at times an amateur radio singer, was breathless after the coronation. She was able only to say she felt "wonderful."

HEAT, DROUGHT STAY, SLIGHT RAIN NO AID

Temperature Today May Be Lower; Brush Fires Fought All Over County

HIGH COST OF FIRES

Chief Smith pointed out that 70 per cent of Pittsburgh fire apparatus was used yesterday to answer 40 alarms, the vast majority of which were grass fires. It costs the city $100 each time an alarm is sounded, Chief Smith said.

The most serious of the brush fires of several score reported yesterday was a blaze in Snake Hollow which swept to the Grandview district near McKeesport. The home of James Williams was destroyed, another home and two stables seriously damaged by the flames, which swept over a large area. The total loss was set at $12,000. Four McKeesport fire companies, along with those of Glassport and Dravosburg, battled the flames for several hours.

BUILDINGS SAVED

In the Stanton Heights district, near the golf club, a number of buildings were threatened by brush fires. Four East End companies fought the flames. In Jack's Run hollow, fire spread along the hillside and came within 50 feet of residences in Termon avenue and Wealth street. Spectators lined Jack's Run Bridge to watch the fire.

Ingram volunteer firemen joined with city fire fighters in extinguishing a fire on the Windgap and Middletown roads near the Ingram Borough line. Fires also were reported near Coal Hill, in the West End; Fairywood, Banksville, Coast avenue, Beechview; Lincoln avenue district, Bonner Hollow, Hays, and near Castle Shannon.

Dormont, Mt. Lebanon, Glendale, Bower Hill and East Carnegie firemen battled a brush fire on the John Sanford estate, in the Washington pike in Scott Township for more than an hour yesterday.

FIRE IN DORMONT

While the Mt. Lebanon department was still fighting the blaze, the Dormont department, which had returned to its engine house, responded to a call to extinguish a brush fire in the Bower Hill road, Mt. Lebanon. Nearby residents used brooms to good effect in extinguishing the latter blaze.

Dormont firemen were also called upon to extinguish a brush fire on borough school property in Hillsdale avenue.

Forest Hills firemen were called out five times yesterday. Four calls were to extinguish brush fires. The firemen pumped more than 300 gallons of water on the top of a hill overlooking Radnor avenue in the Rockwood section in order to extinguish a blaze.

Montour, Oakdale, Heidelburg, East Carnegie, Glendale, Kirwin Heights and Imperial companies battled from 5 to 8 p. m. to extinguish a stubborn blaze on Butcher Hill on the boundary line of Robinson and Collier townships. A stubborn blaze on the hill had been extinguished after a hard fight on Sunday.

Homestead, Munhall, Homeville and a Pittsburgh company stretched 5,000 feet of hose and fought for five hours before extinguishing a fire on the George Felix farm in Mufflin Township, near old Hays Borough. Buildings on the farm were scorched. Firemen combined their efforts and were successful in saving a field of oats.

PARK THREATENED

Blawnox, Etna and Sharpsburg firemen extinguished a second fire that threatened the National Amusement Park near Aspinwall. Sharpsburg firemen extinguished a fire in Etna while the firefighters from the latter borough were completing their task at the park.

Firemen extinguished a fire that broke out for the second time in two days at Glen Osborne.

Residents armed with brooms and garden hose and firemen manning three trucks were successful in extinguishing a fire that threatened homes in the vicinity of Cleveland street, Brackenridge.

Natrona and Natrona Heights companies extinguished two fires that spread in Natrona Heights. Millvale citizens stamped out a fire on Sample's Hill overlooking the town. The Homeville department was summoned to extinguish a blaze near Smith's Grove in New Homestead. Members of the street department put out a fire in Spruce street, Ben Avon. Sewickley firemen extinguished a blaze in a vacant lot at Chestnut street and Kramer way, which for a time threatened to destroy several nearby billboards.

The intense heat is believed to have been the cause of a fire which destroyed planks on the Verona Bridge. The blaze was extinguished by Oakmont firemen.

Crafton firemen spent several hours watching the Idl wood district of the borough where several fires have occurred within the last few days. Two boys arrested in connection with the fires were discharged at a hearing before Burgess John W. Spalter last night.

West Homestead firemen were called at 3 a. m. to extinguish a brush fire which threatened homes in Forest avenue when it broke out a second time in seven hours.

Three Men Killed In Factory Blast

STAMFORD, Conn., Aug. 5.—(INS.)—Three men were killed and a fourth man was probably fatally burned when a series of explosions raked the plant of the Richards Company, a du Pont subsidiary, here today.

Greene County Puts Ban on Swimming

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 5.—The heat wave resulted in closing of all bathing beaches in Greene county today by health authorities. Extremely stagnant condition of the water in nearly all pools caused the action to prevent possible outbreaks of contagious deseases.

Overcome by heat in the yard of his home near Brock yesterday, John Kiger, 80-year-old Greene county resident, broke his hip when he fell.

Unaware of Success, He Leaps to Death

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Success, long-sought and worked for, was on the sixteenth floor of the Statler Building here yesterday awaiting Samuel Grossman, who jumped from a window ledge on the fifteenth floor and was killed.

Grossman, formerly a playwright and poet in Philadelphia and New York, was ignorant of the fact that a radio feature he had conceived had been accepted by officials of a radio station in the building.

Disease Toll Fails To Mount With Heat

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 5.—Excessive heat and absence of rainfall have had no apparent adverse effect on health conditions of Washington. For the month of July, Thomas Henderson, secretary of the Board of Health, reports but 15 communicable disease cases, all of the children's varieties.

MARION DAVIES CASE DROPPED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 5.—(Universal)—Upon motion of attorneys for the defense, Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick yesterday dismissed without prejudice the copyright infringement cases filed by William G. Curtis against Marion Davies, screen star, and others.

Curtis asked damages aggregating in excess of $1,000,000 upon representation that he was the sole owner of rights to "Florodora" and the "Florodora Sexette," which he claimed were used in the filming of Miss Davies' recent starring vehicle, "The Florodora Girl."

In moving for dismissal of the cases, attorneys for the defense stated that counsel for the plaintiff had agreed to the move.

Yesterday's hearing originally was called to require the defendants to show cause why an injunction should not be issued restraining exhibition of the picture and authorizing an accounting of profits thus far accrued.

This was precluded when the defense counsel moved for the dismissal.

WARNS AGAINST AD COMPULSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—Acting promptly on complaints from newspaper publishers throughout the country that certain advertisers and advertising concerns are "blackjacking" them into publishing as news, publicity material sent them under threat of loss of display advertising, the Postoffice Department today issued a warning of possible prosecution under the postal laws.

Frederick A. Tilton, third assistant postmaster general, in charge of second-class mail matter, declared both the publisher and the advertiser might be prosecuted for conspiracy and on conviction face a penalty of $10,000 fine or imprisonment of not more than two years or both.

The postal laws specifically provide that advertisements published as reading matter in the news or editorial columns must be plainly marked as "advertising," Tilton said.

SAID RECOVERY WAS A MIRACLE

Pittsburgh Woman Declared She Never Heard Anything Like It.

"MIRACULOUS" CURES OLD STORY TO THE WORLD'S TONIC REPRESENTATIVE, WHO HAS SEEN SO MANY.

A well-known lady of Pittsburgh spends a good part of her time telling how World's Tonic saved her. She declares she was hardly able to move, that she believed she had cancer of the stomach, and yet that three bottles of this wonder-working medicine made her over again.

"I was really down and out. I had catarrh so bad my nose and head were always full, my breath frightful, and my eyes so weak I couldn't read. Then my stomach got so bad it hurt me all the time, and I didn't digest my food. I lost in weight from 138 to 94 pounds, and my friends believed I had a stomach tumor of some kind.

"I felt so weak that I sent my sister to the druggist for a tonic. Some kind fate made her bring home the World's Tonic, and to that luck I owe my recovery. I felt improvement in three days. Half way through the second bottle my head cleared up, and I began to enjoy my food. After taking three bottles you would never know I had been sick. It was just a miracle."

The World's Tonic representative said he was greatly pleased, but that it was no surprise to him. "I have seen so many cases like it that I am never surprised at the wonderful results of this new tonic," he said. "Over this country hundreds of cases like this one owe their present good health to the best of all medicines — World's Tonic." It is for sale by Dow's, May's & Liggett's, Mayflower, and all other up-to-date druggists. (A-82)

PALACE TO FOIL ART THIEVES

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—The Daily Herald today said it was understood extra precautions were being taken to guard against further theft of priceless art treasures from Buckingham Palace.

Several such thefts have occurred recently in the palace. The Herald advanced the theory some unscrupulous wealthy collector was commissioning crooks to steal the masterpieces. This was said to have support in official quarters, and the paper named an "eminent detective" as saying America is the chief market for stolen pictures.

The Herald commented that there is a type of American ready and willing to pay £10,000 for pictures he knows are worth £50,000 without asking questions as to how they were obtained.

UTILITY RATES SEEN AS ISSUE

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Political observers today professed to see the possibility of public utility rates as a national issue in 1932 as the result of a conference among Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Democratic party leaders here.

Despite repeated assurances from participants that their sessions were of no consequence whatever, the politically minded insisted more than ever today on attaching great importance to them, as they regarded yesterday the midnight meeting between Franklin D. Roosevelt, Alfred E. Smith and John J. Raskob as having interesting possibilities in connection with the 1932 presidential campaign. They were today interpreting in a national light, the Governor's espousal of the cause of the small consumer in connection with possible reduction in utilities rates.

They discussed with interest the possibility of a Democratic national plank in 1932 based on some such slogan as "Help Mr. Average Citizen to Keep His Expenses Down."

LUCAS TO QUIT FOR G. O. P. JOB

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Robert W. Lucas plans to resign his post as commissioner of internal revenue to devote his time wholly to the duties of chairman of the executive committee of the Republican National Committee.

His resignation will be submitted shortly after the executive committee meets on Thursday and chooses him as its head. The action of the committee in his case will be final, the group having complete authority to select its own officers.

As head of the executive committee, Mr. Lucas will have active charge of the forthcoming Republican campaigns, insofar as the National Committee enters into them. His offices will be located in the national committee headquarters.

Whatever action the executive committee may take regarding the resignation of Claudius H. Huston as chairman of the national committee and the selection of Senator Pess, of Ohio, as his successor, will be tentative in character and subject to later consideration by the national committee itself.

FIRE DESTROYS TWO HOUSES

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 5.—Two frame dwellings at Twelfth and Lookout streets, on the outskirts of the borough, were destroyed by fire which for a time threatened to spread to other homes last night. The fire is believed to have started when an oil lamp was overturned in one of the houses. Damage was estimated at $5,000. Firemen from Charleroi and Lock No. 4 fought for two hours to keep the flames from spreading to a row of six frame dwellings.

FURNITURE FURS BEDDING

Visitors Are Enthusiastic About the New

Stylthrift Furniture

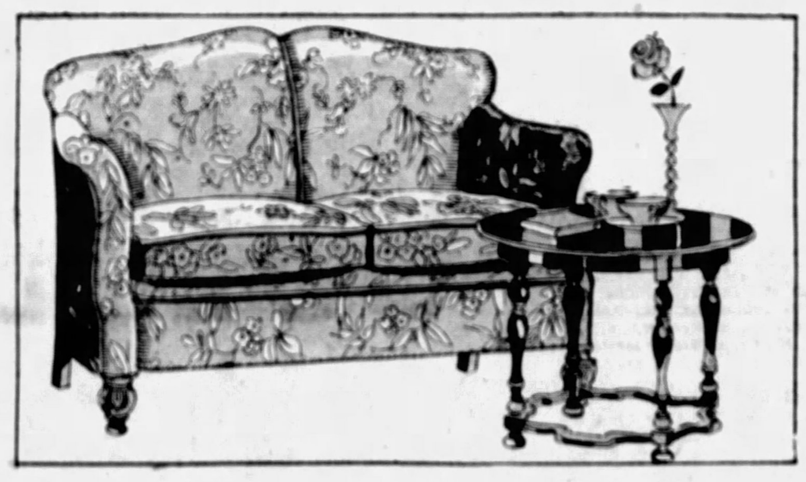
There's something spontaneous and contagious about the enthusiastic remarks people are making about this new section and the furniture in it, since it was opened, in conjunction with the August Sale.

"Just the kind of furniture we want, in such good taste, and yet so inexpensive," confided a young woman and her husband who are moving into the little home they have just bought in Crafton.

"I've never seen such a splendid assortment of furniture especially selected to fit the needs of modest homes" . . . this from the mother of a happy-eyed miss whose wedding has been announced for September. "You seem to have anticipated the problems of newly married couples who like nice things but whose incomes are limited."

"It's so convenient to find such a wide variety of furniture within our means, all shown together in a department of its own," a shrewd-looking young engineer remarked—and his wife added, "Such really lovely styles." (They selected furniture for two complete rooms).

"There are so many helpful ideas here, and so much inspiration for furnishing a small apartment where space is limited," a business woman exclaimed after she had spent over an hour looking around the new Stylthrift Section.



Stylthrift Love Seat, $67.50

Priced less than you'd ordinarily pay for a lounge chair, yet really two chairs in one. Imagine a pair of these love seats used at either side of a fireplace, with end tables. Their size is especially adapted to small apartments, and to almost any boudoir. They're finely tailored and substantially made with web construction and all-hair filling. Covered with durable radner cloth in rose or green, with crewel stitching on one side of cushions—or with damask in rose, green or gold. (Coffee table pictured, $7.50.)

BRITISH HONOR WAR 'MISSING'

PARIS, Aug. 5.—(AP)—On the sixteenth anniversary of Great Britain's declaration of war against Germany, four memorials were unveiled to the 50,000 men of the British forces whose fate was shrouded in the word "missing."

With the dedication of these four new ones, there are eight shrines in France to the memory of those buried in the graves of the unknown.

Gen. Sir Walter Braithwaite unveiled a memorial in Artois Cemetery and Gen. Sir Nevil Macready officiated at a similar ceremony at "Dud Corner," Loos. It was at Loos that Rudyard Kipling, the noted writer, lost a son and Kipling was there yesterday.

Gen. Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien performed an unveiling at Pozieres Cemetery, and Lieut. Gen. Sir Lorio Vaughan at Louveral Cemetery.

SYNOD HOLDING LAST MEETING

TOLEDO, O., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Two hundred and fifty officers and delegates of the Evangelical Lutheran Joint Synod of Ohio and other states, gathered here from all parts of the United States and Canada to attend the forty-ninth and final synodical convention of this 112-year-old Lutheran body.

Before the close of this convention the synod, which has a total of more than 250,000 baptized members, will lose its identity in the merger with the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Iowa and the Buffalo Synod, to become the American Lutheran Church.

When the merger is consummated, on August 11-12, the three uniting bodies, the Iowa Synod and the Joint Synod, will disband their entire organization and reorganize in accordance with the new constitution which has been written for the American Lutheran Church, approved by each of the uniting bodies.

Master Mysteries

By ARTHUR HOERL

'Falling Star'

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Irma Gladden, famous film star, is found murdered in her own car, which is parked on the grounds of her Beverly Hills home. The star's boudoir is completely ransacked.

Now Go On With the Story.

CHAPTER II.

At this point the medical examiner drove in. Robin Dale remained near the car while he made his examination. The reporter was also initiating a careful study of his own while the gruesome work of the doctor proceeded. Dale found a number of details that interested him considerably and which, peculiarly enough, frustrated an early, if questionable solution of the mystery.

He noted that the window beside the driving seat was raised to within three inches of the top; a cigaret had burned itself out on the floor beside the body of Irma Gladden; her silk evening bag lay on the vacant seat beside her; the stub of a second cigaret was on the floor of the car near the right door where, apparently, it had been pressed out by a foot and, upon the rubber mat were distinct traces of reddish mud prevalent in that locality.

Robin Dale walked through the patio inspecting the earth under the shrubs and then strolled about the grounds continuing his minute inspection. Finally, on the house side in a bed of giant oleander bushes, he found the distinct imprints of a man's shoes.

By this time the medical examiner had completed his work and entered the house to report to the district attorney and Capt. Sommers. While there was probably nothing unexpected to be obtained from this report, Dale was interested in hearing it and he followed the doctor into the huge, beamed living-room.

"A .32-caliber bullet through the heart . . . . . the bullet proceeded obliquely and passed out the side of the body between the fourth and fifth ribs, finally embedding itself in the cushion of the car. Death was instantaneous." The doctor paused for a moment and then proceeded. "It occurred about 3 o'clock this morning."

"I've already checked up with the Read's where Irma Gladden attended a party last night. She left there about 2:30. And Joseph Gold went with her—she was to drop him off at his home."

"Joseph Gold?" asked Robin Dale in surprise. "Why, he was formerly Miss Gladden's husband, wasn't he?"

"He was number two, I believe," the district attorney answered with a faint smile, "and according to rumor, was willing to have another try now that the lady had divorced Andre Leighton."

Robin Dale had heard a great deal of the gossip since arriving at the movie city and the most persistent rumor had been that Irma Gladden's next husband was to have been Warren Sibley, her equally-famous director. Of course there was the matter of a present Mrs. Sibley, but the naive, carefree purveyors of life (a la movies) were rarely stumped by such minor difficulties.

There were the rumors, too, about Andre Leighton. He had been her leading man during the production of her innumerable pictures . . . "ideally mated on the screen and in real life" the critics wrote . . . but a rift in their romance led to divorce, a new leading man and a swift, downward path for Leighton. This was brought about, rumor had it, when the former leading man took strongly to drink after losing the woman he adored.

From every direction, as these thoughts went through Robin Dale's mind, came the wraiths of possible motives for this crime, ghosts which hovered about that inscrutible specter which was the soul of Irma Gladden.

A disturbance near the door attracted him and he turned to discover that a police officer had brought in a stranger.

"You're Mindino, the houseboy Miss Gladden discharged for stealing?" he heard Capt. Sommers say.

"Me Mindino, yes, sir," answered the Filipino. The lad was greatly frightened, trembling from head to foot.

"And we found these in his room on San Pedro street," stated the officer, who had brought Mindino in. He held two rings which Capt. Sommers took and inspected.

"The maid said Miss Gladden telephoned you yesterday," continued Sommers, addressing the Filipino house-boy, "when she missed these rings and said she was going to have you arrested."

"Yes, sir. Miss Gladden she speak me, yes, sir . . . I sorry I take, so last night I come bring back, but no can find somebody. Dat 11 o'clock . . . me come back 1 'clock, but somebody not home. Me go den walk home come sometimes again today."

"You mean you were around this house last night from 11 to 1?"

"Yes, sir, me sorry; bring back ring, yes, sir."

"What time did you get home . . . to San Pedro street, I mean?"

"Me walk . . . nice, cool, yes-t'day, too much hot . . . me walk, yes, sir; get late home, 'bout 3, 4 'clock mebbe."

"About 4 o'clock, eh? Well, I'm going to arrest you for the murder of Irma Gladden!"

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

The function of each instrument in the entire ensemble will be demonstrated tonight in a special program sponsored by Atwater Kent over WCAE at 8 o'clock. Mr. Kent will speak briefly of the radio prospects this fall.

Sacred Songs: KDKA at 7:30 will present a quartet of male voices in specially selected numbers for choral use.

QUESTION A DAY:

Lou Brown, East Liberty—Where will Gene and Glenn return to WLAM?

A. The second week in September.

News item reported by 40 Fathom Owen:

"Darrell—I just want to tell you about Arthur Benton, ivory pounder for Penco, and Mike Falhaber, who were chased from the cooling waters of the Allegheny River the other night. The boys forgot to don bathing suits. That might be permissible in the surf of a South Sea Isle but Pittsburgh gendarmes objected. It is not known whether Mike took his bull fiddle to use as a raft or not. We know you'll like this choice bit of scandal gathered by one who has too much ability to be detained as an announcer all his life."

JUST ANOTHER PICKLE

Lou Kaufman was doing pretty good at East Palestine last Sunday until he handed in a sand-trap No. 10 hole on his fifty-seventh stroke. Omitting the number of strokes from there to the No. 10 green, Lou had a perfect 104.

Wallace Butterworth is substituting for Bill Hay on the Amos 'n' Andy feature while Bill takes a needed rest.

Missing: One pair of shears, one shaving mug (paste pot), nine postage stamps, one eraser, a copy of "Louis the Fourteenth in Love and War;" 19 log charts, a blue shirt (size 14½).

TODAY'S TID BIT:

Acid Indigestion Torture for Months. Not A Sign Now!

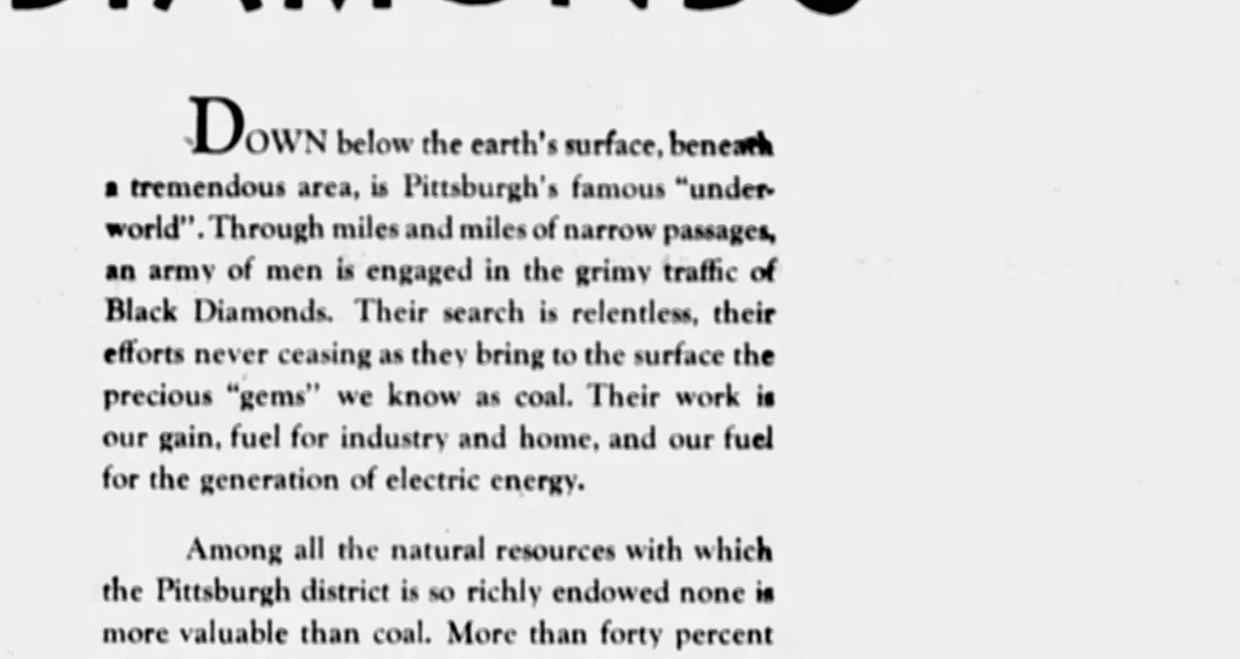
New Formula Acidine Ends Gas Pain After All Else Failed

"I suffered for months with acid indigestion and gas on the stomach," writes Mr. C. Bedford of Detroit, Mich. "Couldn't eat a meal without being troubled with gas and pain, also dizzy feeling. I tried all kinds of medicines, but nothing really helped until I took Acidine. Got relief from the very start. Now I am entirely well, no pains at all. Have recommended Acidine to all my friends."

Thousands are astonished how this new formula Acidine succeeds where other remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different. Contains an effective scientific digestant, Peptase, that promptly dissolves and liquefies 800 times its own weight of heavy, starchy food, under proper conditions. Five other ingredients relieve burning acid, stop gas and soothe irritated stomach lining. No other remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach trouble.

Physicians are prescribing Acidine and thousands have found it the only real relief from acid indigestion and dyspepsia, gas, pain, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, dizziness and other troubles from the stomach. So it is rapidly taking the place of other stomach remedies.

Don't take chances with acidity and gas that often lead to more dangerous illness. Get Acidine today, and watch how quick one dose ends pain, gas. You can smoke, eat and drink if you take Acidine to stop resulting acidity. Results guaranteed or your money back. Get Acidine from any druggist today.



BLACK DIAMONDS

DOWN below the earth's surface, beneath a tremendous area, is Pittsburgh's famous "underworld". Through miles and miles of narrow passages, an army of men is engaged in the grimy traffic of Black Diamonds. Their search is relentless, their efforts never ceasing as they bring to the surface the precious "gems" we know as coal. Their work is our gain, fuel for industry and home, and our fuel for the generation of electric energy.

Among all the natural resources with which the Pittsburgh district is so richly endowed none is more valuable than coal. More than forty percent of all the coal mined in the United States is produced here. It is an enormous industry and the employes engaged in mining and loading number more than 225,000.

The Duquesne Light Company feels privileged in serving an industry that has gained for Pittsburgh a reputation as the "coal metropolis of the world". Electric power has a definite and important function in coal mining, illustrated in the recent electrification and mechanization of a mine in the Pittsburgh district . . . the first in the country to be so equipped from its inception. From the very first operation to the final process of coal washing and shipping, electric power is utilized . . . ectric power that helps the miner to do a faster and better job more safely. The electric rates in the Pittsburgh district are among the lowest in the country.

This is one of a series of advertisements devoted to . . . urgh—her industries and . . . utions

That nude bathing orgy on Long Island a few sundowns ago would make a honey of a Page One! But the nice publisher host pays such swelegant fees for articles, and you know how that is. . . . Novel by Gaston Leroux Second Talk Vehicle For Mr. Chaney

By HARRISON CARROLL.

(Copyright 1929, Feature Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 5.

Eastern doctors have pronounced Lon Chaney cured of the throat infection which threatened his talkie career.

Hollywood's "man of many voices," as he is now dubbed, is back in town again, but will leave in a few days for a rest in the high Sierras. Before his departure final conferences will be held on "Cheri-Bibi," the star's second talkie, which goes into production within a short time.

From present indications, "The Unholy Three" will be the last of the Chaney silent pictures to be remade with dialogue. Lon had wanted to do several more, but now favors new stories. Following "Cheri-Bibi," which is Gaston Leroux's novel of Devil's Island, Chaney is scheduled to make the long-postponed "Bugle Calls." This vehicle was first talked of months ago, in fact, it was the occasion of Walhe Beery being signed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

IT'S THE HEAT

The warm weather of the last week has told on the patience of film actors working in hot soundstages. Several setton have been reported, some of them edged with temper, and other more good-natured.

Out at Universal, Jean Hersholt was rehearsing with "The Cat Creeps" company. As he went through his lines, Director Rupert Julian halted him.

"Wait a minute, Jean," he said. "You should wear your hat in this scene."

"Well," objected the perspiring Hersholt, "do I have to in rehearsals? I don't talk through my hat, you know."

STUDIOS FOR MARY

Studio officials have rushed to the defense of Mary Nolan, the former Imogene Wilson, who has been accused by two nurses of being a narcotic addict. After making an investigation, Warner Brothers declare that they are convinced the accusation is a mistake and will retain her in the leading role "Ex - Mistress." Universal, Mary's home studio, plans to put her in a picture as soon as she finishes the Warner film. I am not intimate with the facts of this particular case, but film stars are notoriously the target of exaggerated stories.

Mary Nolan

Movie title changes are endlessly amusing. How's this for a fall from grace? Warner Brothers' "Handful of Clouds" is now to be called "The Doorway to Hell."

DRAMATIZING DETROIT

Our automobile industry is to be dramatized in a forthcoming Fox picture, "F. O. B. Detroit."

Dudley Nichols is writing the screen story, and Benjamin Stoloff will direct. It is planned for Frank Albertson. Fox's advancing juvenile player, to take the lead in this romance of carburetors and synchro-mesh transmissions.

Huge Nugget Starts Australia Gold Rush

BENDIGO, Australia, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Discovery of a 30-ounce nugget at Tarnagulla, Victoria, 40 miles from here, has started a new gold rush.

More than 200 prospectors, mostly driving American cars, have pegged out claims.

JAZZ AGE FOLLY FILM, 'UNGUARDED GIRLS,' BILL IN PITT

By KAYE GODARD.

"Unguarded Girls," showing in the Pitt, is a disconnected, choppy and heavily censored story of jazz-mad modern youth, its follies and indiscretions. It is a case, cited by an official of the Missing Persons Bureau, of the daughter of a rich family, allowed to live and do as she pleased, who learned when it was almost too late of the foolishness of wild parties and too much drink.

Complications offered are those caused by a few hardened gangsters who are headed by the girl's father, a youngster who leaves the gang and "goes straight" because he loves the girl, and another young couple who have existed only for cheap night clubs and liquor.

The cast is an unfamiliar one. Also on the program are illustrated lectures.

It is shown for women only.

Washing machines, baby carriages, gas ranges, all kinds of household equipment can be bought at bargain prices through the Classified Ads.

Grand Jury to Get Earl Carroll Case

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—All evidence of alleged indecency gathered by police against Earl Carroll and his associates will be presented to the grand jury tomorrow.

Carroll, with Jimmy Savo, Faith Bacon and Kay Carroll, members in his latest New York production, was arrested following a raid on his show. General Sessions Justice Rosalsky directed they be given a trial by jury.

Motor fuels come and go—but PITTSBURGH keeps going on AMOCO

The oldest special motor fuel in Pittsburgh when you count by years of service. The "youngest" when you consider performance!

For Amoco-Gas, that veteran special motor fuel, known to Pittsburgh motorists since the dim and distant days when four-cylinder motors were still considered a daring innovation—has seen many a would-be rival come on the scene and make its exit.

And today, Amoco-Gas, the pioneer special motor fuel is still first choice of Pittsburgh! First by right of performance, first by right of economy—and first in sales!

"Low cost per mile is what counts," says Pittsburgh—and that's why Pittsburgh keeps saying "AMOCO-GAS"!

CAPT. MENKE AGAIN HAS THE DRAMA SHRIEKING

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Captain Menke's showboat people give us another show. And is it a show! We hope to dive in the river! But we don't. We just laugh.

This latest insult to this thing called drama is titled "Main Street Folks." But it is such a nice insult. You don't mind it at all. And, of course, everything is all right for the heroine at the final curtain.

However, we feel sorry for the heroine. Poor girl! She says herself she is like the butterfly with crushed wings. And you know what this means—villain replaces the proverbial rat in the woodpile.

But don't get us wrong. We like Capt. Menke's drama. And we like the captain. Yet, he is a bit inconsiderate. The water keg that was set up for the convenience of cash customers on opening night is now part of the scenery. So be thirsty if you dare!

Oh, well! As the showboat showers say, life is life and all we have to do is live it. And they live it! And for their living, life is a bit more amusing and more interesting.

Still there is something sad about it all. (Too bad, we are so sentimental.) These actors, they are all so serious. They are the Barrymores and the Arlisses! Which makes us want to cry out loud.

After all, though, amusement is the thing. And if it never could be said before, it can be said now: This all-wet opera of Capt. Menke's comes under the head of amusement. And don't forget, there is vaudeville between the acts.

$1,100 Taken in Two Labor Camp Holdups

KITTANNING, Pa., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Some 60 persons were robbed of cash totaling approximately $1,100 at camps of the Connell and Laub Construction and the U. G. I. companies, according to reports made to Sheriff George Shaffer.

Three men and a woman held up the Connell & Laub camp, obtaining approximately $500. A Negro lined up 22 persons at the point of a revolver at the U. G. I. camp and obtained more than $600.

MT. LEBANON COAL 'GOUGE' CHARGED

SIDE WALKS of PITTSBURGH

by WILLIAM PFARR

Bennie Kristof, who picked up that fumble for Carnegie Tech against Notre Dame a few years ago, is now one of the gentlemen of the Bell Telephone Company, and we have chosen him to carry to his boss, Mr. Bradford, an idea of ours which should be worth millions to all concerned.

Here it is:

The Bell Telephone Company, promoting, of all things, telephones, suggests to the housewife that she order her groceries by telephone, thereby saving a trip to the store. But the wary housewife—Mrs. Jones, for example—knows that the average grocer will not select a dozen tomatoes for her with the same critical eye that she would exhibit.

Well, to assure Mrs. Jones that Wolanchik (the grocer) will not send her second-grade tomatoes, the Bell Telephone Company goes to Mr. Wolanchik and says, "See here, Wolanchik, unless you send Mrs. Jones the best there is in tomatoes, we'll take out your telephone."

From then on it's tomato soup at the Joneses.

Since the stock-market crash we have been scurrying about, asking this citizen and that whether that collapse had hurt his business. And, of course, it has. Probably 250 have told us that their respective businesses were bad. But we have succeeded; we have finally found somebody who admits that his business hasn't been affected one iota. Bill Marshall, the immigration inspector for this district, announces that deportations are going on just the same.

Secretary Mellon likes to quote Treasury figures; Attorney Edward Roth insists on quoting Whistler. Probably in these fast-paced days the attorney is filling a need by quoting Whistler, although what that need may be we do not know.

Undoubtedly you don't remember that Whistler was what we call a wisecracker these days. He had made an especially smart wisecrack on one occasion when his admirer, Oscar Wild (who doesn't remember Oscar?) sighed:

Oh, but I wish I could have said that."

Whistler replied:

"You will, some day."

The tall, thin, wrinkled James Eads How, whose face seemed buried beneath untended whiskers, was known to Pittsburgh reporters and a small circle of nondescripts. How came to town every so often and in the McGeagh Building would serve doughnuts and coffee to a dozen or so unemployed. How was known as the millionaire hobo, a description he didn't care for. He felt his friends should be known not as hobos but as the unemployed. A gullible man, he apparently did not realize that the men he wanted to befriend thought him a bit queer.

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug 5.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Mary Pickford was robbed by by Douglas Fairbanks. Burglars entered, but Doug said he had no money. They asked if he knew where he could get some. Doug said:

"Why yes, Mary has some."

"Well, can you get it?"

"Well, I always have, if she is asleep."

So Doug burglared Mary for 100 bucks, came downstairs and turned over $90, keeping ten per cent for commission and overhead.

Burglars made arrangements with him to come back as soon as Mary had anything else.

Yours, WILL.

AIRPORT FUNDS AWAIT RETURN OF ARMSTRONG

Money Likely Will Be Raised Through Commissioners' Bond Issue, Says Babcock

With the return of County Commissioner Joseph Armstrong from his vacation Thursday, work will be speeded up on the new city-county airport with money procured probably by a commissioners' bond issue, County Commissioner E. V. Babcock said today.

Dismissing Commissioner C. C. McGovern's charges of gross waste in the construction of the airport as another of "his stock quotations," Babcock also declared the commissioners will concentrate their efforts in an attempt to pare awards to landowners whose property is being condemned in the project.

FIGHTS EXCESS AWARDS

He said:

"There is no doubt but that the property owners want a lot more for their property than it is worth, but we intend to fight excessive awards.

"The new airport is a big thing, and of course we'll need a lot of money. We intend to rush the work as much as possible, and the end of the summer should see at least a hard surface at the airport.

SHIPS CANNOT LAND

"It's impossible for a ship to land there now because of the sand and gravel on the rough ground. We expect to put this hard surface plan through at once.

"As for the money, that can be taken either from the general fund, or it can be procured by a commissioners' bond issue. It is probable that the bond issue method will be used."

Pointing out that the city is paying 25 per cent of the cost, Babcock said that the city should be represented at the meetings to be held after Armstrong's return. He said that in the absence of Mayor Kline, Councilman John S. Herron and Public Works Director Edward G. Lang should attend the meetings.

Vote Machine Bids to Be Awarded Soon—Babcock

Commissioner Babcock announced today that a contract for voting machines will be awarded, probably next week, following the return of Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong. Bids were opened July 22. The Commissioners hope to have some of the machines available for use at the November election.

SPAN REPAIRS MEET TOPIC

Immediate repairs to the Ivory Street Bridge were to be discussed today at a meeting of city and county public works department representatives and officials of the Pittsburgh, Butler and Harmony Railway Company. The meeting was to be held in the office of Director Edward G. Lang, city director of public works. The bridge was closed a week ago when a crack was discovered in one of the abutments.

The purpose of the gathering is to determine who is responsible for maintenance of the span, which was built in 1908. The bridge connects two important highways, the Perrysville and Evergreen roads.

FIRE DESTROYS WAREHOUSE DOWNTOWN

P. R. R. Shipping Records Lost as Spectacular Blaze Demolishes Old Building

Flames which mounted high in the air lit the skyline of downtown Pittsburgh early today when a Pennsylvania Railroad warehouse, in which were stored old shipping records of the road, was fired by spontaneous combustion.

When firemen from downtown companies reached the blaze, at Duquesne way and Eleventh street, the fire had eaten through roof and walls. The building, a one-story sheet-iron structure, was virtually destroyed.

Old papers and wooden files, dried from long storage and heated by a parching dry spell, provided fuel for the fire.

CROWD SEES BLAZE

Hundreds gathered to watch the flames. An Atlantic Refining Company service station on the opposite side of Eleventh street was thought to be threatened for a time. A water tender and engine patrolled the viaduct above the street, keeping sparks from igniting the ties.

Occupants of rooms in the Fort Pitt Hotel were awakened by the noise and they quietly received the news that there was a large fire in the neighborhood. Some descended to the streets to watch the blaze.

Railroad police at first believed the blaze to be in their freight warehouse. The first alarm was telephoned to the fire alarm operator by attendants of the gasoline station.

Fire companies at first went to Duquesne way and Fifth street. When they discovered their error, the flames were nearly beyond control. An alarm was then sounded from Liberty avenue and William Penn way, bringing out additional companies.

Under Fire Chief George P. Sparr, a one-hour fight ended the blaze. Sparr and railroad officials could give no estimate of the damage.

HUSBAND SEEKS TO ENJOIN WIFE

Suit to enjoin his wife, against whom he has instituted proceedings for divorce, from selling their home at 706 Evans street, McKeesport, has been filed in Common Pleas Court by Robert J. Todd against Bridget K. Todd.

The couple were married 33 years ago in 1897 and parted December 6, 1923. The divorce suit was not entered by Todd until last September. In it he charges his wife with cruelty.

Todd says he bought the lot in Evans street in 1905 and had the deed drawn in his wife's name. Shortly afterwards he built a house on the lot entirely with his own money. He asks the court to adjudge his wife a trustee in holding title to the property, and to grant an injunction restraining her from selling or mortgaging the property.

Two Men Arrested On Narcotic Charges

William Walker, a Negro, charged with violating the federal narcotic act in peddling morphine, and William Koerber, charged with the possession of narcotic drugs, arrested by city detectives and government narcotic agents, were committed to jail in default of $2,500 bond each for a hearing today before the United States commissioner.

P. C. W. Places Cornerstone For Buhl Hall

The corner stone of the Louise C. Buhl Hall of Science at the Pennsylvania College for Women was placed yesterday. Mrs. George W. Martin, alumnae trustee, and chairman of the building committee, laid the stone, assisted by Miss Cora Helen Coolidge, president of the college. Among those attending were Mrs. Alex Murdock, alumnae trustee; Mrs. William M. Coyle, Miss Margaret Stuart, secretary of the college; Mrs. Olive Robinson, assistant secretary; Miss Catherine Sayre, secretary to the dean, and Miss Edith McKelvey, alumnae secretary of the college.

The new building, a two and one-half story structure, is expected to be completed in time for use at the beginning of the school term this fall.

Raquel Appears at Ball As Spanish Princess

CHAPTER XVIII.

Raquel should have been weary to exhaustion after acting as model all day for Alphonse's private exhibition of feminine fripperies in the Park avenue mansion of the Bosarts, but she was not even a little bit tired. How could she be? Wasn't she going to the gorgeous Bosart ball, in a marvelous home of wealth and beauty? Wasn't she going to be a princess, a Spanish princess, at least for a night?

She was—unless—

Determinedly, she turned her back on the alluring picture that added fresh fuel to her kindled spirits. Something had to be done about Jack Farrell.

She sat in front of her mirror at the Hotel Brixton, face to face with her problem.

"Jack Farrell," she said aloud, to the grave Raquel in the mirror. "The name sounds strange. It sounds—yes—as if it belonged to a stranger. It's all you can do to remember what Jack Farrell looks like. He's lean, and brown, and laughing, but your can't see him very well. You've forgotten him."

It was true. Farrell was practically a stranger to her.

She had promised to marry this stranger. At any time he might appear and demand that she keep her promise. He might be down-stairs, asking for her this very moment. She'd have to see him. She'd accepted money from him. Money she could not now repay. And that would be the end of the gorgeous ball, the Spanish princess—the end of Beauty.

Raquel Plans

Decides to Flee From Jack Farrell

No. She wouldn't have it. She couldn't stand it. Farrell had no right to ask it of her. Roaming around from place to place, like gypsies. Living in cheap hotels, like this Brixton.

The Raquel in the mirror looked at her with mocking eyes.

"Cheap hotel? This?" The other Raquel asked. "Why only a few days ago you thought it was grand."

"Well, I don't think so now," she answered. "That was before I knew what it really meant to be beautiful, to be grand. I thought it would be everything just to get out of Hermosa. To go places. To see people. But it isn't. It's just—nothing like being a Spanish princess with only that old red silk dress you used to wear. It makes you want to hit somebody—or cry."

Life with Farrell would be like this. He had, she felt sure, given her all the money he owned. Maybe a few dollars left for himself. He would get more. He was that kind. But never enough. Money ran through his fingers like dry sand. Never for her trailing flesh chiffon with fur—paradise feathers—balls.

Frightened

Becomes Scared When Phone Rings

"I'll leave the hotel tonight," Raquel decided. "Find a room some place that doesn't cost much. Then he can't find me. My money'll last longer. I'll be getting paid by Alphonse in a few days."

She started to gather her things, in a quake of fear lest even now she was too late.

Telephone. Someone for her.

"If that's Farrell," she paused to regain her composure—"I won't let him frighten me. I've made up my mind. He can't change it. He can't."

She lifted the receiver. Alphonse. He was imperative:

"Come to the shop at once. I have selected the gown you will

DEAL SHOWS EXCESSIVE PRICE

Firm Reported Purchasing Mineral for One-Half Cent And Making Charge of 75

The Pittsburgh Coal Company is buying up coal in place for about one-half cent a ton while it is seeking to exact 150 times that price, 75 cents a ton for coal in place, from Mt. Lebanon property owners under threats to undermine their surface by pulling the coal pillars supporting it, reported transactions of the company disclose.

This idea of value on the part of the company is expected to reinforce the demand of township officials for a marked reduction in price when the negotiations between township and company representatives involving coal supports for township property and streets are resumed in a few days. About five per cent of the township area is involved in the controversy.

The conference, initiated by the company to forestall condemnation proceedings to prevent undermining of public buildings and streets, were started yesterday. They await completion of a survey by township and company engineers to determine the extent and location of coal pillars required for support of municipal property, streets and sewers.

LOW PRICE CITED

The survey as a preliminary to a discussion of price later was agreed upon after a three-hour conference attended by G. J. Irwin, township manager; Edwin S. Goldsmith, township solicitor; W. F. Vegeler, township engineer, and Don Rose, general counsel for the company.

The township representatives discussed the initial negotiations at an informal meeting with members of the board of township commissioners in the Mt. Lebanon municipal building last night.

Recent transactions by the company, reported by a party to the transfer, showing that the company regarded about one half cent a ton as a fair value for coal in place have taken place in Snowden and Jefferson townships. The company is reported buying up the Freeport vein of coal in that section of the county at the rate of $75 an acre. This vein is seven to nine feet in thickness and is estimated to yield a price of about one-half cent a ton for the coal in place.

The vein is about 200 feet below the Pittsburgh vein, which is a five-foot vein, and the cost of taking it out is thereby increased, but it is regarded as an example of the indefensibility of the 75-cent rate asked by the company in Mt. Lebanon.

Mining operations under the Mt. Lebanon area were resumed after a temporary suspension of work by 400 miners of the Pittsburgh Coal Company in connection with the start of the negotiations with the township.

The company agreed to avoid mining of coal which may be included in the areas which the township may designate for support of its buildings and streets. There is no agreement to prevent undermining of private tracts, and the negotiations of the company with individual owners are to be continued.

While no statements were made by township representatives with regard to negotiations on behalf of property owners, it is known that conclusion of present negotiations will be followed by the contention that any compromise in price that may be agreed upon should be extended to private property.

LOSES APPEAL AGAINST P. R. R.

Frank J. Bernhart, of Oakdale, today lost his appeal from the court decision which declared a non-suit of his charges against the Pennsylvania Railroad.

Judge Frank P. Patterson sustained the non-suit granted in May, 1929. Bernhart had sued for damages, charging that the Oakdale station agent, Charles Hastings, had struck him after an argument over Bernhart's baggage. The court held that Hastings did not act within the scope of his employment.

Seek Arrest of Chef Taking Daughters to Paris

CHARLEROI, Pa., Aug. 5.—Aid from the Department of Justice and officials of the French Steamship Line was enlisted today by the Washington County district attorney's office, in an effort to arrest Martin Everhard, 37, en route to Havre, France, with his daughters, Grace, 7, and Audrey, 3.

It was said at the prosecutor's office that Everhard, steward at the Nemacolin Country Club, near here, and former chef at the South Hills and St. Clair Country Clubs, Pittsburgh, left with the girls after deserting his wife and son here.

Everhard plans to present Audrey, who is an accomplished dancer, on the Paris stage, according to the child's mother. He has been chef to the Queen of Holland and on numerous ocean liners.

BELLEVUE GIRL DRIVER KILLED AS AUTO UPSETS IN OHIO

CRASH BLAMED ON BLOWING OF TIRE

Sister of Victim Is Slightly Hurt; Boy Cut as Mother Drives Auto Into Pole

Arrangements were being made today to return here from Ashtabula, O., the body of Miss Katharyn L. Book, 25, of 99 Grant avenue, Bellevue, the victim of an automobile accident. Miss Book was killed yesterday when a car she was driving overturned near Newlyme, a short distance from Ashtabula.

The accident is believed to have been caused by an exploding tire. Mrs. Bertha Flynn, of Sharon, Pa., a sister of Miss Book, escaped with slight injury.

Miss Book was born in Pulaski, Pa., daughter of William S. and Jessie Brown Book and a descendant of two pioneer families of what is now Lawrence County. She leaves her parents and five brothers and five sisters. Miss Book was graduated from Sharon High School in 1924.

Raymond Hague, 9, of 526 Brookline boulevard, was cut and bruised last night when an automobile driven by his mother, Mrs. Lili Hague, hit a pole at Negley avenue and Rural street. Mrs. Hague swerved her machine to the side of the street to avoid striking another automobile. The boy was treated at the office of a physician.

W. A. Hoffmiss, 32, of 302 Amabel street, Mt. Washington, was injured seriously today when an automobile in which he was riding collided with another car at North and Irwin avenues, North Side. He was removed to the Presbyterian Hospital where it stated he had suffered internal injuries. He was riding with W. C. Haunze, 29, of 224 Wilbert street, whose car collided with that of R. H. Cracknell, 24, of Alliance, O. The drivers were arrested.

Man and Girl of 15 Held in Homestead

Arrested with a 15-year-old girl, D. R. Hurst, 22, of Clarksburg, W. Va., was being held today in the Homestead Police Station.

Homestead officers arrested them when they applied for a room at an Amity street boarding house. Police say Hurst enticed the girl from her home in Derry, Pa.

She is being held pending the arrival of her parents who, police declare, will prefer charges against Hurst. Because of her age, the Sun-Telegraph will not publish her name.

West End Boy Hurt In Fall From Swing

Thomas Gehring, 15, of 640 Steuben street, was in the South Side Hospital today with injuries suffered last night when he fell from a swing in the Wabash playgrounds, at Wabash avenue and Neptune street. Picked up by other children, Gehring was taken to the hospital in the West End Police patrol.

The Camera Question Box

Today's question—One of the questions in the Edison test was that of the expedition which had come to grief on a desert island. There were supplies enough to last three people until they had reached civilization, and three were to be chosen from the group, which consisted of a brilliant scientist, two half-breed guides, the wife of the scientist, her 6-year-old son, the girl you are engaged to marry, your best friend, and yourself. Which three would you choose?

Miss Mullen

MISS LORETTA MULLEN, Bulger—If I were a man and in such a predicament I would choose the girl whom I was to marry, my best friend and the little boy. Then the girl could marry the best friend and raise the boy.

Jack B. Sussman

JACK B. SUSSMAN, salesman, East End—I think the boy should be saved because he is so young, and after that the girl and the man to whom she was engaged, so that there would be at least two people of those who had been in the party who could have happiness and life.

Samuel Spokane

SAMUEL SPOKANE, salesman, Hill District—I would save the engaged girl, the 6-year-old boy, and the young man. It would be inconsiderate and ungenerous to include oneself in the group.

Miss Clark

MISS LORETTA CLARK, student, Bulger—In that case I would save my fiancee, myself, and one of the guides, so that we could be taken back to civilization in safety.

Miss David

MISS MINERVA DAVID, saleswoman, Bridgeville—My first consideration would be for the girl to whom I was engaged. Then I would include the scientist because he would be great enough to still be of great use to the world, and the little boy because he might grow up to be something. He is young enough yet to have a big chance.

Miss Hermes

MISS KATHRYN HERMES, Bulger—I think the wife of the scientist should be rescued, her son because of his extreme youth, and the young man. He should think of himself first or no one else would bother about his welfare.

CHANGE IN BUS LINES ARGUED

Proposed changes in bus routes serving Highland Park district and Schenley Farms today were heard in an application before the Public Service Commission sitting in the City-County Building.

A shorter route from the Highland section through the Friendship Park and Bloomfield districts proposed by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company would cut the running time eight to 10 minutes. The buses would operate from Liberty avenue, at Fifth avenue, to Oliver avenue, to Webster, out Bigelow boulevard to Bloomfield Bridge, to Liberty, to Taylor, to Friendship, to Negley, to Stanton, to Euclid, to Wellesley, to Sheridan, to Grafton, to Highland and Bryant.

The mileage would be shorter by a mile and a fraction with the 25-cent fare continuing. In place of the route now followed from Liberty avenue to Wood, to Boulevard of the Allies, to Forbes, to McKee, to Fifth, to Bigelow, to Bayard, to Amberson, to Ellsworth, to Ivy, to Howe, to Highland, to Rippey, to St. Clair, to Callowhill and return, the proposed change would be made from the present route at Howe street by continuing to Denniston, Kentucky and Shady.

No opposition was expressed against the changes.

FACES RETRIAL IN MATRICIDE

George A. Wood, 25, who is serving a workhouse term for the felonious shooting of his mother, will now be tried for murder in connection with her death. A coroner's jury today recommended that he be held on that charge.

Since Wood, who has several times been a mental patient at Mayview, was convicted of the shooting, his mother, Mrs. Mathilda Wood, of Ocala street, died. On the first charge, he was sentenced to serve 3½ to seven years.

Police testified that Wood shot his mother, a widow, because he thought she was trying to have him returned to Mayview. At the trial, she was taken to the courthouse on a stretcher and pleaded for him.

Insurance Workers To Hear Penn Man

Abbott agency of the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company. Two meetings are to be held in the Keystone Athletic Club at which time Prof. Huebner will discuss advanced methods of underwriting and to point out principles of rendering high grade service to policy holders.

Completing Munhall Postoffice Plans

Plans are being completed for a new postoffice at Munhall to replace the one destroyed by an explosion last December, in which six persons were killed, Postmaster W. H. Kessler, of Homestead, said today. The new building will be of brick and will cost about $12,000. Work is expected to start in a month.

Shoe Repair Shop Downtown Robbed

The Klein Shoe Repair Co., 538 Smithfield street, was entered last night by thieves who forced the rear transom. From the till in the shop $30 was taken, according to police.

HURT ON CAR, $50,000 ASKED

A price of $50,000 is placed on injuries sustained by Mrs. May Kaecher, of Mt. Washington, when she alleges the doors of a one-man street car slammed together, crushing her, in a suit she and her husband, Clarence Kaecher, have filed in Common Pleas Court against the Pittsburgh Railways Company. The accident occurred June 6. The woman claims to have been hurt about the sides, head and back, and says her right arm has become paralyzed.

Home Brew Makers Freed at Hearing

Arthur Hoffman, 35 of 30 South Eighteenth street, and Eli Vukinovac, 47, of 2627 Carey way, were discharged by Magistrate J. J. TREE PERCHERS UP 500 HOURS; TIRE OF PIE

Find Appetite Has Waned After 3 Weeks; Mishap Lands New Homestead Boy

Noon today saw Pittsburgh's champion tree-sitters—James, Lawrence and Robert Gravely and their cousin, Sammy King, of Sickles street—pass the 500-hour mark still perched among leafy boughs 20 feet up.

Although they are determined not to leave their perches until school starts, they have decided to withdraw from the pie-eating tournament staged ever since a kind neighbor decided to donate a pie daily to each boy, so long as he should remain aloft. After three weeks of pie, their appetite for it has waned.

One of New Homestead's team, which is giving the champs a close race, was disqualified suddenly yesterday. Steve Moseenki and his pal, James Hardy, constructed a platform in the topmost branches of a sturdy tree, about two weeks ago, so there might be no accidents. Yesterday the boys got restless—the platform tipped—and James found himself gazing skyward from the ground. However, Steve still holds the hope of catching up with the Brushton birds.

No reports have been received from the other dozen teams that line Pittsburgh's trees.

GIRL, 6, SHOT BY BOY-ACCIDENT

Margie Harris, 6, is in Columbia Hospital and Dick Fisher, 14, was in the East End Police Station.

Margie is suffering a bullet wound in the right arm and side. Dick is suffering, too, silently—after the hysteria which followed the accidental firing of a revolver belonging to Margie's father, Arthur D. Harris, of 574 Brushton avenue. The Fishers live at 504 Brushton avenue.

Standing in the center of the room, Margie was watching Dick adjust the cylinder of the revolver. Her brother Don, 12, was coming into the room. The gun barked. Neighbors and Mrs. Harris came running. Dick and Don stood aghast. On the floor the little girl writhed in pain.

Attaches of the hospital say the girl is injured seriously.

NEW FIRESTONE STORE OPENS

Men prominent in the automobile industry in Pittsburgh yesterday took part in the celebration attending the opening of the new $500,000 Firestone Service Stores, Inc., at Baum boulevard and Negley avenue, and were treated to a flight in the "Firestone Safety Ship," piloted over Pittsburgh from Bettis Field by William M. McConnell, former airmail flier.

The ship, with three 425-horsepower engines and having a 78-foot wing spread, was built especially for Harvey S. Firestone by Henry Ford. It returned to Akron, its home port, last night.

The formal opening of the new store will be held August 23 and will be observed for a week, according to J. C. Sanford, vice president and general manager. It is regarded as one of the finest automobile stores in the state.

McConnell, pilot of the "Firestone," left the air mail service in June, 1929, and took the stick of the Firestone ship. Since that time the flier, known on every principal airport in the country, has piled up a mileage of nearly 100,000 miles. He has flown 11,000 passengers in this plane without accident.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Social Set Plans for Winter

Now when the mercury is flirting with the heights of the thermometer, society folks are finding anticipation of the events of the coming winter or even of the winter after next, much pleasanter than entertainments. And many of the plans for several seasons to come will probably be made during torrid August by society leaders who find the spacious, shaded terraces of their homes or of country clubs far more appealing than any social gathering.

Season after next will be as attractive as the coming season it appears, for a number of girls, many of them intimate friends of the buds of the coming season, will make their bows in the fall of 1931.

One of these will be Betty Kennedy, young daughter of the John J. Kennedys, of Shady avenue. For the past three years Betty has been a student at Westover and this winter she wil study in Switzerland. As I mentioned yesterday, she'll sail on August 16 on the Aquitania with her father and mother for Europe.

Another girl who'll probably curtsey to society season after next is Evelyn Freeman, daughter of the John Miller Freemans, of Ellsworth avenue.

Summer Visits

Evelyn and her mother, who've been motoring through rural England since May, have returned to the states, and have gone to the summer place at Bass Rocks, Gloucester, Mass. Early in October the Freemans will return to Pittsburgh and Evelyn will go to Baltimore to school.

Have you heard that Adele Elliot, daughter of Mrs. William Baker Elliot, of Haverford, Pa., and Joseph Dilworth Beggs, also of Haverford, son of the late Harry C. Beggses, of Pittsburgh, were married in Philadelphia Thursday? They'll be at home in Haverford after a wedding trip.

The bride's a member of the Junior League and a graduate of Miss Irwin's School; Mr. Beggs is a graduate of Princeton, and a member of the Ivy, Racquet and Merion Cricket Clubs.

Mr. and Mrs. Cullett left for a western tour and will later continue studying at the Moody Bible Institute in Chicago, in preparation for missionary work.

Miss Dorothy Stitt, whose betrothal to Leonard DoOge, of Kansas City, Mo., was announced at a bridge luncheon given recently by her mother, Mrs. Marguerite Stitt, of Connecticut avenue, Dormont, became the bride of Mr. DoOge on Sunday in the First Presbyterian Church of Greensburg, with the Rev. Francis Kearn officiating.

Married Sunday

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Donald Stitt, wore a gown of blue and white flowered chiffon with a large white hat and a corsage of white tea roses. Miss Mary Casey, of Aspinwall, as the maid of honor, wore yellow flowered chiffon with a matching hat and a corsage of yellow tea roses. The bride's mother wore ecru lace over Alice blue satin. Charles Egan, brother-in-law of the bride, was the best man.

After the ceremony there was a dinner and reception in the Mountain View Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. DoOge left for Cleveland and will cruise the Great Lakes and visit western cities. Mr. DoOge was formerly assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce.

Pair Would Drift In Rubber Ball To Europe

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—Karl Herzog and Fritz Vogel, both of Brooklyn, today were looking for a company to furnish them the gigantic rubber ball in which they plan to bob across the Atlantic.

They are quite serious about the project and insist they plan to drift across the ocean in 50 or 60 days. The wind will blow them across in that time, they declare. Vogel explained:

"There's nothing complicated about it except we haven't got the ball yet. We would have a hole in the top of it, lower in water and food, get inside and just wait for the wind to blow us over to Europe."

SHANTUNGS DISTINGUISHED IN NEW PRINTED FLORAL PATTERNS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 5.—After a period of darkness, shantung once more takes its place in the sun, and as if to atone for our long neglect of so useful a fabric, we are using it for all sorts of suits and frocks. Years ago, the suit of natural shantung used to be an indispensable part of the summer wardrobe, but it was always a most simple affair, usually just a coat and skirt for walking purposes worn with a lingerie blouse. With its restoration to sartorial favor this season, it has been much used for beach togs as well as for other vacation clothes and has proven itself to be cool, comfortable and withal good-looking. And so as a reward for its usefulness, it has been made up into smart little afternoon ensembles after having found itself in print. Printed shantung, generally in small floral designs, is a distinct contribution to our material well-being, and it is being worn by some of the smartest women here, all of whom invariably demand comfort as well as chic in their clothes.

THE IMPETUS to the fashion for ensembles of printed shantung has come from several American visitors here, many of whom patronize the establishment of Capt. Molyneux. The ensemble shown in the sketch to the left was ordered from him by Mrs. Milton Holden on her recent visit here. The jacket is short and both dress and coat are trimmed simply but smartly with narrow pleatings of the material which has an effective green and white lily of the valley design on a very pale beige background.

THE OTHER SKETCH is also of a smart model from Molyneux which was made for Mrs. Graham Fair Vanderbilt. It is of peach georgette with a short cape which gives a bolero effect in front. Two large flowers are interestingly placed on the corsage, and the gown is worn with long gloves.

First the ensemble . . . now the "Symphonie"

"SYMPHONIE" is the newest word in the fashion-world! It denotes harmony between clothes and complexions. Today's more natural, feminine styles demand a realistic rather than an artificial beauty. Have you been "coloring" your complexion with face-powder? See how much more flattering the effect when you use "Symphonie" . . . the newest Armand Face Powder. It's blended to the underlying flesh-tones . . . gives new glory to every skin.

WAGNER DEATH SADDENS CITY

BAYREUTH, Germany, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—The death of Siegfried Wagner, son of the famous composer, Richard Wagner, has plunged the city into mourning. Wagner died here yesterday at the age of 61, from a heart attack.

His death deeply shocked the large international audiences attending the annual festival of Wagner music.

Within a few hours after the death became known, most of the buildings in the city were draped with black.

Funeral services will be held in the hospital Tuesday for the family. In the Wagnerian tradition, the body will be buried in the Bayreuth Cemetery after a public funeral by the municipality.

The festival performances will continue despite the death of the man to whose enterprise they are chiefly due.

CHIROPODISTS NAME HEADS

DETROIT, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Dr. Joseph Lelvveld, of Rockland, Mass., was elected president of the National Association of Chiropodists at the nineteenth annual convention here. Los Angeles was selected for the 1931 convention city.

Other officers elected were: Vice presidents, J. G. Baker, Omaha; F. J. Carlton, Chester, Pa.; Owen W. Fowler, Detroit; John F. Kelly, Boston; George Scherer, Jr., Los Angeles; Harold P. Smith, Indianapolis; secretary treasurer, E. K. Burnett, New York.

Doctors Louis Lewy, of New York, and Gus P. Darling, of Atlanta, were named to the national committees.

Don't Starve The Teeth

Teeth have to be built out of foods that are rich in phosphorus and calcium. Many children take into adult life teeth that are defective, unfit for the job that nature intended. Shredded Wheat with milk helps develop sound teeth, good muscles and good bones. It is rich in the bone-making salts. The crisp, crunchy shreds make chewing necessary and that develops healthy gums and good digestion.

Foolish to Get Disgusted Over Loss of Job

Discouraged? Disgusted?

Got yourself doped out as a total flop? Sure that life has you licked, even before you start? Yes? Then you'll sympathize with Tom. For Tom is certainly sunk.

Yet, according to his own report, he has the finest gift any man could ask—his sweetheart's love and trust. But he's so bent on wallowing in gloom that he doesn't even think he should accept that.

Read it yourself. Maybe you'll recognize some of the symptoms.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"It is a deeply puzzled and dreadfully discouraged fellow who is writing this letter—one who is going about crazy worrying over bad luck.

"As fate would have it, I had a little argument where I worked, and lost my job. I'd been employed there six years, and I felt terribly blue about losing out. I was out of work for a month, and being unable to get a position like my former one—a white collar job—I went to work for a wholesale house at $30 a week, but doing altogether different kind of work from what I used to do.

"I am pleased in one way with my work. It is pleasant, but it's not as good as what I've been doing, and the advancement is very slow. And I feel ashamed to tell my sweetheart just what I do, because it is considerably below what I did before I lost my job.

WOULD WORK ON

"We were planning to get married this August, and my fiancee had expressed her willingness to co-operate with me to the extent of working for a year or so until we got going good, although we do have a small savings account.

"Can a couple take a chance like that, do you think? I was all for it so long as I had my other job, but now I feel terribly discouraged, and I wonder if it is wise when I feel such a lack of confidence in myself. More than once I have told my sweetheart that it is best to part, because I feel that someone else can give her more. I am, and always have been, very sincere in saying this. Her reply is always the same . . . . just tears.

"We love each other greatly. But I fear for the future. I've tried to discourage her faith in me, but God knows I do this against my will, as I love her with all my heart and soul, but the thought that she loves me as much makes the situation still worse.

"My employer has promised me a 'good opportunity,' but I think it calls for selling, and I am a dead 'flunk' at that. I feel that the future is hopeless. I guess I'm just a spineless sap. That's what I really feel that I am.

"How can I make her understand how I feel? How the thought of the future has me so blue? Am I doing right by her, do you think? Please help me. Perhaps if you'll answer this, she may see what you say, whatever it is, and understand what a wretched state I'm in. I am afraid of hurting her, whatever I do. And I don't want to do that. She's a great kid. What shall I do? I'm so discouraged. TOM."

GET ANOTHER JOB

What'll you do?

Well, just off hand, I'd suggest taking a good, long, mean look at yourself. Here you are, sobbing around, wringing a fine little kid's heart and acting in general like a dose of hives—for what? Because you lost your job. Suppose you did. What of it? What's the loss of one job—or a dozen—if you still have the makin's within you?

As a matter of fact, the loss of that particular job was probably the best thing that ever happened to you. You're far too young yet to take root in any one job. And if something hadn't jarred you out of your rut, you would probably have stuck for life, and been an old man, years before your time. As things now stand, you're exactly where any youngster with a spark of gumption ought to be—out in the firing line, hopping lively and moving fast. So instead of bellyachin, you ought to be thinking your lucky stars that you're on your way.

But I suspect that you're getting a Big Bang, son, out of thinking that you're one of the world's great martyrs. And if you do, you're not unique. We all like to pretend, now and then, that life has loaded the dice against us. It's so dramatic to think that Fate's picking on us in particular—and such an easy alibi for laziness and conceit.

But it's all hoey. Our Fate is what we make it. We get what we expect in this world. If we expect failure, believe me, boy, we'll get it in gobs. But if we expect success—if we insist that success is our right—and if we roll up our shirt sleeves and spit on the good old palms and go after it—the world is ours!

You've lost one job and you're almost ordering lilies for yourself. Think of the men that have lost dozens and still taking the gate receipts. Napoleon, for instance—that little, poverty-stricken, obscure man. Life was just one brickbat after another for that lad at the start. But did he sit down and blubber the first time one landed on his ear? I'll say he didn't. He got so busy and so mad he nailed down all the available geography before he cooled off.

Be a Bonaparte, kid! Thank God for this wonderful girl who loves you so—snap out of this dying duck role—wipe your chin and crash into it!

Girl Who Wins Man You Wanted May Be Doing a Favor—Fay King

IT IS HARD TO SEE ANOTHER GIRL WIN THE MAN YOU WANT!
BUT WHEN YOU MEET SOME ONE ELSE YOU LIKE BETTER, IT TURNS OUT THAT GIRL DID YOU A GREAT FAVOR!
FAY-TING

By FAY KING

It often happens that a girl is heartbroken when some other girl wins the man she wanted.

Their friendship may have been such that she considered herself engaged.

The pain she feels is partly due to the thought of what her friends will think. Especially those to whom she has confided her fondest hopes too frankly, perhaps.

It is not well to confide too much to even one's best friends. Then explanations are unnecessary.

But I have known girls who have survived broken engagements and lived to laugh over it. In time, and when they met and married some one else and were wonderfully happy, they realized that the girl who won their first love away from them really did them a great favor after all!

Savarin, Near Death, Pours Out His Heart in Letter

"The picture which accompanies this," Robert Savarin's letter went on, "is one which I had planned several years ago. I meant to give it to you upon our wedding day, and when I realized that day would never materialize, I laid the sketches away—all except one—a drawing of you and your child together which I made one day never to be forgotten by me—I wonder if you remember it, too."

Involuntarily I raised my eyes from the letter and found Lillian steadily regarding me. Patently she had been following my moving eyes, and knew the part of the letter at which they had arrived.

"Yes," she said sadly. "I do remember. I—almost—wish I didn't. I saw Robert at his best, his dearest and tenderest that day. The memory makes me feel guilty, somehow—and yet—how could I help it? I ought never to have let him—"

"Ought never to have let him—what?" I retorted, putting as much scorn in my voice as I could manage, for I saw that she needed strong measures. "There never was any question about 'letting' Robert Savarin do anything. The man fell violently in love with you, the first time he saw you, and swept everything aside ruthlessly in his royal wooing of you.

"You never gave him the 'slightest encouragement'"—Lillian smiled faintly as I stressed the Victorian phrase—"instead you 'discouraged his advances' in most thorough fashion. But he refused to be 'discouraged.' You know very well that your promise to marry him was only given because Marion begged you to give her 'Uncle Robert' for a 'really, truly father,' and you were too spent from your long illness to struggle against your own judgment."

"But not against my own inclinations, Madge," Lillian said with the innate honesty which is her strongest characteristic. "I was fighting myself as well as Robert when I kept refusing to divorce Harry and marry him."

"Robert didn't know that," I retorted, "so your conscience is clear about 'letting' him do anything. He hasn't the slightest grounds for blaming you——"

"He doesn't," she interposed. "Read on, and you'll see."

I took up the letter again as she bade me, found my own name in the next sentence.

"From that drawing of, you bending down to your child as she held up some wild flowers to you, I did a study of you both which I think is the best bit of work I have ever done. When I am gone, I wish Mrs. Graham to have it because of her divine sympathy with us both, and her loyalty to you. I would have sent it with this, but I cannot give it up while my eyes have vision to see it. I have it placed in my room where my eyes can see it when I first awake, and it is the last object in my sight when I go to sleep. I have a light arranged so the picture is always illuminated, even though the rest of the room be dark, so that when I waken as I often do in these pain-filled nights, I can see your pictured face.

"The painting will be the last thing my eyes will see. I know that you cannot come to me even for an hour. I cannot ask of any man what I would not give myself, and I know that were the conditions reversed, and you my wife, I could not let you go to see even a dying man who had counted upon taking my place.

"So this is goodby, my love. Do not blame yourself for anything. I persuaded you to a betrothal against your own sound judgment—I realize now, against your own sub-conscious desires. And I was too old, too much of a more archaic generation, to keep pace with you. But no man could have loved you more. Let these be the last words from me. I love you.

"Robert."

I folded the letter and handed it back in silence, for the only question which was on my lips I dared not ask her. She was so still, her poise so perfect that a casual observer would have thought her almost unmoved by the letter which she took mechanically from my hands and held as if unconscious of its presence in hers. But I knew that she was torturing herself with self-reproach and guessed that her soul was aflame with the desire to grant to the man who had loved her so well, the boon he would not ask of her.

"I must show this to Harry," she said a moment later, and I saw how I could best help her.

"Won't you let me do that?" I asked quietly.

She looked at me with startled eyes which held a question. And after a moment I nodded an assent to that unspoken query. She drew a quick sharp breath.

"Oh! if you would!" she said, and I went swiftly out of the room in search of Harry Underwood.

But he was not in the house, and Katie, to whom I appealed, had no information to give me other than the statement that "he go for leetle valk by orchard vunce."

The orchard, however, was deserted, but Jim, at work in the barn pointed to the hilly copse at the rear of the farm.

"He went up that way, the last I seen of him," he said.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND.

They're Both 'Doing Time'

Most unmarried girls think of a husband as they do of a watch or a clock—as something they can regulate and rely upon.

Oh, beautiful dream! Any seasoned wife could tell them better!

Somehow, a husband always balks at the most unexpected moment, just as a watch often stops for no apparent reason. You never know what either of them will do next. But that is what makes life interesting!

A dependable husband, like a dependable timepiece or a Scotch conscience, is positively RELENTLESS. With him, the dinner hour is unelastic, the rising hour unchangeable, midnight cannot be compromised with and life holds no surprises.

On the other hand, a husband who won't keep faith or regular hours, is as exasperating and confusing as a watch that won't keep time. Yet, a woman always goes right on hoping that she can set both straight and will not have to discard them.

A woman hates to discard a perfectly GOOD-LOOKING watch, or a perfectly good-looking husband, however worthless.

Some men, like some watches, "run down" through neglect, but far more are wrecked by too much "regulating" and constant misha dling. Others are just built that way. The mainspring of their ambition is weak or h..pelessly impaired—and nothing will keep them going.

Nothing is quite so useless as a watch or a husband that "won't work," and nothing so trying as one that has to be constantly wound up and started going.

And yet—and YET, a home without a husband, and a house without a clock, somehow, lack the motive power. There is nothing THERE—nothing to inspire a woman to get up mornings, remind her of her duties, and keep her GOING all day.

There is a certain companionship about the ticking of a clock, or the prowling of a husband around the house. You can expect no conversation from either; but just their presence gives you a sort of comforting reassurance that you aren't ALONE in the world.

Husbands and clocks do not exactly MAKE the world go 'round; but they have a way of making you feel that it would come to a dead stop without them.

And, on second thought—it probably WOULD!

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Facts About Kidney Stone and Colic

Persons who lead sedentary lives are liable to have health hazards which must receive careful attention. Especially is this the case where there is lack of exercise and a wrong diet. It is more common in certain types of occupation which help to make flaccid muscles. It comes, too, when there is a poor working condition of the various glands and secretions of the body.

DR. COPELAND

Kidney stone and resulting painful colic is one of the health hazards in question. It seems to be a very common condition today.

Those who suffer with gout, or a too abundant amount of uric acid in the system, may have it. Wine drinkers and heavy eaters, are affected by kidney stone and colic.

Instead of remaining in solution, and being carried along by the kidney current, sometimes the solid materials accumulate in one of the kidney cavities. This forms at first sand-like substances, which later grow to the size of gravel. Three materials go to make up this substance—phosphate and oxalate of lime and uric acid.

Some of these substances are fine and others coarse. Some are sandy or crumbly, and others hard as rock. They may be smooth, or jagged and do much harm. They vary in size from that of a pea or bean to a hen's egg.

If particles of sand-like substance appear in the urine as it is passed, and if at the same time there is a dull pain in the loins, kidney stone may be suspected. The diagnosis will be confirmed if blood also appears in the urine.

Connecting each kidney with the bladder is a narrow tube about eighteen inches long. This is the "ureter." When one of these stones begins its passage through one of the ureters, the pain is excessive. This pain is called "kidney" or "renal" colic.

This colic comes on very suddenly. One may be awakened from sleep with it. The pain may be felt after lifting, or violent exercise.

The pain is first felt in the loin or groin, and soon extends to the back and abdomen. The patient suffers intensely, there being nausea, vomiting and even fainting. The patient's face is bathed in perspiration, the pulse fails and he collapses.

While the doctor is being summoned, there are some measures which may relieve the sufferer. Get the patient into a hot bath, running the water hot as can be borne. Or you may apply hot water compresses. Hot drinks are comforting.

For one who is subject to this trouble, he should live simply, get plenty of sleep, exercise and fresh air. He should eat easily digested food and avoid rich and highly seasoned foods. In this way his health will be improved.

MISS HARD-BOILED

By JANE DIXON

wear for the ball. There must be a fitting. Two of the workers will remain through the night in order to complete it. Come to the side door of the shop. Ring the bell."

That settled it. She could not find another room tonight. She must not keep Alphonse waiting.

She pulled what belongings she had gathered in a little heap on her bed. She'd have to leave them there. If Farrell came—it was a chance. She must take it.

Shortly before midnight the following evening, the immaculate black town car of Monsieur Alphonse Courbet again drew up before the gray stone pile at Park avenue. Lights had transformed the formidable Gothic structure into a glimmering palace of enchantment.

A man in livery leaped down from the seat beside the chauffeur of the black town car to open the door and hand out a woman, followed closely by her maid.

Only the head of the woman was visible above an enveloping wrap of fur that seemed to have been plucked from some virgin snowbank.

The woman proceeded along the bright crimson carpet under the enclosed canopy and entered the glimmering palace of enchantment. She was shown to the private suite of Mrs. Elsworth Bosart.

Fifteen minutes later the woman emerged into the private living room of Mrs. Bosart, where the chatelaine of this enchanted palace and the pinky retainer, with Alphonse, awaited her.

A silence followed her entrance. The pregnant silence born of three human beings gazing on a miracle. Miracle of a woman, slim and lithe, her proud head high in a sable cloud. Creamy pallor of her cheeks shaming the hearts of the gardenias that snuggled up to them on her shoulder. Delicate curves of her body sheathed in silver that gave off little beams of light when she moved, like the ambient moon. Two stars twinkling through the midnight of her eyes. A single ruby smoldering on her breast, its color dimmed by the rubies that were her lips.

"Raquel — Princess — we are delighted that you have come!"

It was Alphonse who shook off the spell of this woman modeled of ice and the night. He moved forward, took her languid hand, kissed it in the fashion of the continent.

"You are superb," murmured the pink man; his mouth dropped open. "You are the most superb creation I have ever seen," he added, warming to his subject, "with the exception of my wife." He had caught himself just in time.

Raquel looked at Mrs. Bosart. She felt that prickling sensation in her veins. She shivered, swayed, as if in a cold wind. The woman was not human. She was a ghost, a skull and bones hung by some ghoulish prankster with the trappings of beauty.

Most terrifying of all, the ghost was a replica of herself, Raquel. A grimacing specter of herself, save for the silver sheath. The specter wore a gold sheath.

"Seeing you—I'm almost sorry I didn't choose the silver——" Mrs. Bosart glanced doubtfully from Raquel to her pink knight. "If it weren't that Elsworth, my husband, is so partial to gold——"

"No, no, m'dear." The pink knight was adamant. "The gold is better for you. The richness, the glow. You two are twin chalices, gold and silver. A sensation! That's what you are. A sensation!"

Fool of an Elsworth! Why didn't he address himself to his Bonnie when he raved this way? Instead of devouring her, Raquel, with his greedy eyes.

"You have made me a princess." Raquel laughed, turning to the less devouring but more sincerely appreciative eyes of Alphonse. "but you have not given me a name. Who am I?"

"You are the Princess del Manzanilla. You will go to the head of men like hot wine."

Hang Them Straight

The way clothes are hung up to dry has a great deal to do with the ironing. Hang them in the same position in which they are worn and you will find a great deal of their wrinkles are blown out during the drying, instead of adding new ones that are hard to iron out.

Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Cornmeal mixed with a rich soap suds makes a splendid cleanser for the hands, especially after heavy work has been done, leaving the hands sensitive and chapped. Oatmeal also is good for healing a roughened skin surface, but it doesn't dig out grime as does cornmeal.

When walking, the body should be carried rhythmically, somewhat like the posture of the soldier as he marches to the music of the band. Toes pointed straight ahead, chest high, body stretched tall, hands swinging, feet with a firm grip on the ground. A five-mile walk a day grows facial roses, clears out the lungs, rouses the circulatory system, boils up a good appetite and brings refreshing sleep.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Suggesting the Evening's Entertainment

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a young man has known a young lady for some time, is it proper for the lady to suggest just when she would like to go out?

A says I ought to do the suggesting. I think he ought to do the suggesting. ARGUERS.

The gentleman should suggest the kind of entertainment for which he wishes to be host. It is not correct for the lady to do this since she is the guest.

Correct Accessories

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am taking my daughter, a girl of 15, to a wedding which is to be at 7:30 p. m. She is going to wear a white flowered taffeta dress, and I would like to know which of these you think is better to wear with the dress. Shall she wear black patent leather pumps or white kid pumps? Also, what color stockings would be nice with them?

Mrs. M. J. D.

To my mind, the white pumps with white stockings would be more appropriate with her dress.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Wednesday, August 6

The planetary rulership for this day must be characterized as portentous. There is a sign of an abrupt and sudden upheaval which may be attended by situations of a grave nature, with many stubborn obstacles and the danger of loss of finances and position. The energies must be marshaled to defeat these hostile forces by discretion, determined resistance, calm action and wise judgment.

Those whose birthday it is may prepare for a year of sudden upheavals of a disintegrating nature, with many difficult situations to contend with, and with the prospect of money loss if unwise speculation or ill-considered moves be attempted. Safety lies in calm actions, perseverance amidst frustrating and hostile forces and the conservative management of finances. Make changes cautiously.

A child born on this day may require the most careful education and training to enable it to cope with extraordinary situations in life, in which only persistency, sagacity and well-deliberated movements may be needed to dispose of frustrating and hostile forces.

Oh, These Women

By LEOLA ALLARD

A lady from Seattle thinks the modern girls are going to the devil at twentieth century speed. She is astonished that I can find one optimistic thought, seeing girls smoke and dress and misbehave the way they do. She doesn't think any decent woman will smoke.

Lady, lady!

She quotes the Bible every few lines, but I fear she falls short in her interpretation of it. She thinks no woman can bring a child up to be decent unless she is a "saved person."

Well, I've known and seen and written and read about many mothers who were not saved persons, but I can't remember one of them who wouldn't have given an arm or an eye to keep her child from anything that wasn't perfectly proper. Some "bad" mothers, who don't seem to have much moral sense about themselves, have one constant prayer and it is: "Please, Lord, don't let my baby be like me."

I wonder if the writer, in reading her Bible, purposely skipped the passages that tell you to be careful how you judge, lest you be judged? I wonder if she saw anything about forgiveness and a great deal about charity and faith and hope? She remembers: "As ye sow, so shall ye reap," but I don't suppose it ever occurs to her that if she doesn't sow a few kind, charitable thoughts she stands to reap some pretty cold hard charity herself some day. Hard people always come to need it.

She says school teachers are terrible the way they dress and they are so improper it would "make angels weep."

Really Mrs. Seattle, you sound almost fanatical. Haven't you ever seen demure looking women with the tongues of serpents? And the other day I saw one of these flappers you scorn, leave the two girls she was with, and lead a poor old blind lady across the street.

You speak of these "abominations." You seem to be picking out all the sins of the world and you are overlooking all the beautiful things around you. What a pity! You know your Bible, but you don't know people and you misinterpret so many things. Broaden out—mentally. The world isn't going to the devil. Styles have changed. It's nothing more serious. Don't keep repeating all the sins of the world. You are TERRIBLE company!

A Cutting Table

In so many of the modern homes a large table for cutting out patterns is an impossibility on account of lack of space. If you have no large table in your home, spread a large square of oil cloth over the top of your bed and cut out on this large area. The scissors will not penetrate the oil cloth and it is a nice smooth surface on which to spread out your pattern.

POOR COURSE HANDICAP TO CHAMPION

WITH A POOR course threatening to hurt his chances of winning a fourth consecutive national public links golf championship at Jacksonville, Fla., in the annual tournament starting today and extending through Saturday, Carl F. Kauffmann, Pittsburgh's muny links idol, is facing the hardest test he has been up against since he first captured the crown at Cleveland in 1927. The Jacksonville course has been reported as a "cow pasture," with fairways burnt out, and with bumpy, untrue putting surfaces that are as hard as billiard tables, and therefore all the more difficult to pitch on over the traps that are said to surround each green.

Carl F. Kauffmann

While Kauffmann always has been able to survive the qualifying test since he first competed for the championship, that part of the competition appears to be his hardest job this time. His entire hope of capturing the title a fourth time seems to hinge on his survival of the 36-hole medal test today and tomorrow, in which only 32 of the field of 119 players, representing 25 cities, will qualify to go on with the battle at match play.

THE CHAMPION ALWAYS has endeavored to work up gradually to an edge in title competition, permitting his game to lag just enough to qualify, and then to improve as the match-play rounds advance towards the final, when he reaches his peak. But to lag today and tomorrow over a course that has been hardened by the nation-wide drought, that has been burned out and rendered almost unpitchable by a torrid Southern sun, will be a hard thing to do.

Many of those who qualify for the man-to-man tilts starting Thursday will reach that status only through the favor of Lady Luck, for owing to the conditions existing in Jacksonville, fortune in the breaks of the game appears likely to be a greater factor in this year's tournament than ever before. With all of Kauffmann's skill—and he is really a great shot-maker and a star among stars as measured by the standards of the best match players in the country—it is the breaks of an untrue and tricky course that he will have to meet and beat if he is to come home king again. An inferior player may have just as good a chance as the best on such a course.

PRETTY TOUGH when two pitchers hold an opposing club to a single run in two ball games and yet get only an even break out of it. That was the unusual fate of Carl Hubbell and Fred Fitzsimmons, Giant hurlers, against the Robins Sunday and yesterday.

Fred Fitzsimmons

On Sunday Hubbell did not allow a run until the ninth inning, when he forced in a tally and lost, 1 to 0. Yesterday, Fitzsimmons sliced half a game off Brooklyn's first-place margin by holding the league-leaders runless. The Giants are getting improved pitching these days. Incidentally, that makes seven straight games that Fitzsimmons has won after getting only an even break in his first 10 contests. He has beaten Chicago and Brooklyn twice in his streak, and Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Boston once each. Yesterday's win was his third over Brooklyn in four games this year.

BOXING PROMOTERS IN Los Angeles say they have discovered that night baseball is not to be feared as a rival attraction. Two weeks ago the Olympic moved up its regular weekly shows from Tuesday night to Monday night in order to avoid a conflict with the Los Angeles Coast League club playing a game under electric lights. The shift hurt the gate, so last week the Olympic went back to its regular schedule, with the result that the Welgast-Dado bout pulled more than $12,000 and outdrew the ball game better than two to one.

SO HEREAFTER THE Olympic management will not worry about conflicts, but will continue to stage its show on Tuesday night whether ball games are scheduled or not. Tonight the Los Angeles feature bout will see Harry (Kid) Brown, who met Johnny Smackey at the Meyers Bowl in North Braddock in June, facing Billy Townsend; Armand Emanuel and Leo Lomski are booked for next Tuesday, and Midget Wolgast and Chato Laredo for August 19.

The custom of admitting women free on certain occasions has spread from baseball to boxing on the coast. There will be no charge for women with escorts at the Brown-Townsend show tonight, though this applies to the reserved sections only, not to the gallery. This practice will be followed at regular intervals in Los Angeles and is gaining favor in other parts of the country.

JOE TINKER, former major league manager and star shortstop, names two old Pirates in picking an all-time baseball team. He selects Honus Wagner for shortstop and Fred Clarke for left field. He gives the pitching awards to Christy Mathewson, Ed Walsh and Three-Fingered Brown, and the catching posts to Johnny Kling and Roger Bresnahan.

Joe Tinker

Tinker names Frank Chance for first base; Napoleon Lajoie for second, and Jimmy Collins for third, while for center field his choice is Ty Cobb and for right field Babe Ruth.

"GOOD OLD WAGNER is my shortstop," says Joe. "He was a phenomenon. He covered more ground than any other shortstop I ever laid my eyes on, and he was also a magnificent hitter. Clarke, when he managed and played with the Pirates, was the finest left fielder in the majors. I have never seen a more courageous player. I remember once during a game with our team in Chicago that Clarke made a running catch of a hard drive with fully 50 pop bottles flying in his direction. At bat, two strikes never bothered him. He was a quick thinker and hitter extraordinary in a pinch. I think he drove in more runs than any other member of his Pittsburgh team. John McGraw is my all-time manager. I take my hat off to him. He used to fight the old Cubs bitterly, but fairly. Today he still is the leading manager, and I am not forgetting Connie Mack."

JACK (KID) BERG, who meets Kid Chocolate for 10 rounds at the Polo Grounds in New York Thursday night, is said to be even more of a perpetual motion machine while in the ring than was Harry Greb, and far ahead of such other windmills as Maxie Rosenbum and Ace Hudkins. Fans who have wondered as to the source of his seemingly boundless energy have their answer in the disclosure that Berg possesses a remarkable pair of lungs.

The Whitechapel Kid explained it all to a group of information seekers by merely expanding his chest. The expansion reached the amazing figures of 4½ inches. How far this is beyond the mark of the average lightweight may be judged from the fact that Chocolate's expansion is only 1½ inches. As a further demonstration of his lung power, Berg jumped into a swimming pool and swam under water a distance of 150 feet. And he's not an expert swimmer at that.

THE PASSING OF time brings some strange changes in viewpoint among sport celebrities. For instance, only a few years ago, Willie Hoppe, while still 18.2 billiard champion and playing an en-over par. Both were bothered by the fast, heat-baked greens.

SCORES ARE HIGH

Dominick Strafaci, Brooklyn, had a 37 for the initial nine, Tuley Brucker, Louisville, Ky., carded at 43. Earnest Caldwell, Baltimore, went out with a 39. Charley Brown, Louisville, Ky., had a 42.

John J. Amanna, second member of the New York team to complete the first nine, also took a 42. He buried his ball in a sand trap from the eighth tee and holed out in 7.

Among the early leaders was Charles Farrera, San Francisco's city champion. He also found difficulty on the fast grass greens and turned in a 38 for the first nine holes.

CASPER EQUALS PAR

Par was equaled for the first time when Wesley Casper, former Kentucky State amateur champion and semi-finalist in the public links tourney last year, carded a 36.

An international touch was added to the competition at this juncture when G. Sato, Japanese entry, from San Francisco, left the first tee.

Dr. I. R. Davis, of St. Louis, was the second entrant to register a par 36. Barney Lucus, Los Angeles, and Michael Champi, Brooklyn, turned in 39s.

MISS PALFREY NET VICTOR

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—By the narrowest of margins, Sarah Palfrey, youthful Brookline, Mass., player, escaped defeat in the first round of the fifth annual Maidstone Tennis Club's invitation tournament yesterday. Clara Louise Zinke, of Cincinnati, carried the New England girl to three deuce sets before surrendering by scores of 8-6, 5-7, 9-7.

Most of the other favorites advanced to the second round with little or no trouble. Mrs. L. A. Harper, of San Francisco, victor in the Seabright and Longwood tournaments, drew a bye but other Californians saw action against opponents, who for the most part, gave them nothing more than a workout. Marjorie Gladman, of Santa Monica, eliminated Marion Lawley, 6-0, 6-1, and then brushed aside Mary McHale, 6-2, 6-1.

U. S. Davis Cup Team Due in N. Y. Today

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—William Tilden and three other members of the American Davis Cup team, defeated by France, will arrive here today on the liner Majestic. The three players with Tilden are George Lott, of Chicago; Wilmer Allison, Dallas, Tex., and John Van Ryn, New Jersey.

Western Junior Golf Play Starts Today

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Lacking a defending champion, the Western Junior Golf Association championship opened today at Flossmoor, with 250 entrants. Fred Lyon, of Pontiac, Ill., 1929 winner, did not return to defend the title, making a wide open battle out of the tournament.

ROSENBLOOM WINS

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 5.—Maxie Rosenbloom, world light-heavyweight champion, shook off a series of hard punches in the first two rounds and managed to win well within himself in a 10-round bout with Willard Ito, of Birmingham, Wash., here last night. Ito won three of the rounds and one was even. They fought at a sizzling pace.

HENS GET MAYS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Thomas L. Turner, president of the Portland Beavers, announced yesterday that Carl Mays, Portland pitcher, had been released outright to the Yankees (Utica) club of the American Association. He was given his unconditional release. Mays, former major league star, has been the mainspring this year in a recent feud encountered with Jimmy Walker, another Beaver hurler.

Lord Burghley Hurdles Way To Train

LONDON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Lord David Burghley, noted hurdler, and Brooman, lightweight boxer, were forced to show their athletic mettle when their train pulled out of Waterloo Station toward Southampton this morning carrying 46 British athletes bound for the Empire Games in Hamilton, Ont.

Burghley and Brooman were talking to friends at the barrier when the whistle announcing the train's departure sounded. Dispensing with further farewells, the men dashed after the departing train, Brooman sidestepping knots of people adroitly and Burghley hurdling two luggage trucks.

After a good sprint they managed to jump aboard the rear coach.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Fred Marberry, crack moundsman for the Washington Senators, will be out of the game for at least two weeks on account of a broken bone in his right wrist.

This became known yesterday when physicians X-rayed his wrist which he injured in sliding into third base in the fifth inning of the second game with New York Friday.

It was found that a small bone was broken. Physicians set the bone and placed the wrist in a cast.

Garden Opens Dicker For Jack-Strib Bout

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—William F. Carey, president of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, said he discussed the possibility of a 15-round bout between Young Stribling and Jack Sharkey for New York in September here yesterday with Johnny Buckley, manager of the Boston heavyweight.

ROBINS OPEN SERIES HERE TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The ambitious Pirates, ambitious still despite their second division standing in the National League pennant chase, will play a second exhibition stand today, ere returning to Forbes Field to take on the league leading Brooklyn Robins tomorrow. The Buccos will perform for the edification of the folks of Charleroi this evening, meeting the Charleroi Governors of the Mid-Atlantic League.

With the Robins here tomorrow, Thursday and Friday, and the Giants due to open a stand on Saturday, the Buccaneers face a strenuous week. The team is in fine fettle at present, having won seven of its last eight games, including a clean sweep of the series with the Cardinals at Forbes Field last week.

FRENCH TO PITCH

Larry French, who in his last appearance against Brooklyn, turned the leaders back in a 1-0 shutout contest, is slated to get the pitching assignment in the series opener tomorrow. Hollis Thurston or Adolfo Luque will be ready to toil for Uncle Robbie's aspiring Flatbush crew.

The Pirates can do the Cubs and Giants much good by knocking off the Robins in the coming series, and at the same time aid themselves materially. Should Pittsburgh take the measure of the Robins in two of the three games, the local chances of securing a much coveted first division, money berth, would improve greatly. And at the same time, it would scramble the pennant situation no end.

In the absence of Rolly Hemsley, who is still hors du combat with a split finger, Farmer Al Bool, the hefty Nebraskan with the suddenly acquired Ruthian complex, will work behind the plate, Farmer Al won himself four watches in three games with four home runs while in Chicago, and is thinking seriously of going into the wholesale jewelry business.

BUCS DOWN ELWOOD

Yesterday, after returning from a satisfactory stand in Chicago, where they took two out of three games from the second place Cubs, the Bucs visited Ellwood City, defeating the Beaver County League nine of that place by a 4 to 0 score.

MINORS OPEN CONFAB TODAY

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—The long dispute between the major baseball leagues and the Class AA circuits over the draft question promises to develop into open warfare today when club owners of the American Association, Pacific Coast and International Leagues go into a huddle here.

The conference of the three AA class clubs originally was called to consider renewal of the minor league agreement but that business has been subordinated by the recent demand of the majors that unless all minors submit to the draft all business relations between them would be severed on and after December 1, 1930.

MAY DEFY DRAFT

Since the majors' demand, the International and Pacific Coast circuits have voted to defy the draft and accept the challenge.

At its meeting the American Association is expected to follow suit and formulate plans to carry on a "triple entente" without direct or indirect affiliation with the majors.

Two other leagues, the Western

Nick Altrock Says:

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—I just discovered what ails the Phillies. They have been playing miniature baseball all season. The Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce is worrying about the Phils. It claims a club like that gives the city a bad name. So hereafter they want the A's to be known as the Phillies and the Phils can be called the Z's. They are planning on Sunday baseball in Philadelphia next season by taking the teams across the river and playing in Camden, N. J. That is a good idea so far as Connie Mack is concerned, but if the Phils ever cross the river, the citizens will burn down the bridges before they can get back.

EXTRA-BASE HITTING AIDS GIANTS IN CLIMB

N. Y. HURLERS IMPROVE AS CLUB GAINS

Associated Press.

Extra base hits coupled with steady, effective pitching is spelling success for the New York Giants as they slowly climb toward the top of the National League percentage ladder.

The Giants have won 12 of their last 15 contests to mount within four games of the league leading Brooklyn Robins in the National Circuit. The persistent climb also has narrowed down the Cubs' advantage over their New York rivals, the difference today being just one and one-half games.

BLANK ROBINS

The Giants furnished a good example of why they are pennant contenders yesterday when they defeated the Robins 4 to 0. There was not much difference between the pitching of Fred Fitzsimmons and Watson Clark of the Robins in so far as number of hits were concerned. The Giants got nine and Brooklyn six, but three of New York's total were of the home run variety. One came off the bat of Allen in the first inning and Lindstrom and Terry connected with the other two in succession in the ninth.

In the only other National League game on the books the Boston Braves managed to eke out a 3 to 2 decision over the Phillies despite Lefty O'Doul's single, triple and home run. Bob Cunningham played an important role in the Braves' triumph, holding the Phillies to eight hits and driving in two runs with a double.

A'S MAKE GAIN

The pennant chase in the American League saw the Athletics take advantage of the idleness of the Yankees and Senators to gain a half game with a 13-to-4 triumph over the Boston Red Sox. Lefty Grove hung up his seventeenth victory of the season. The Mackmen's ace accounted for three runs with a homer in the second inning.

The champions pounded Horace Lisenbee and Bob Smith for 15 hits, including two doubles, three triples and a pair of home runs. Two of the triples and one home run, his twenty-sixth of the season, were credited to Al Simmons.

Charlie Gehringer was the whole show at Detroit as the Tigers took a 12-inning pitching duel from the Chicago White Sox, 7 to 3. His home run in the twelfth with the bases loaded gave Vic Sorrell the best of the hurling argument with Ted Lyons. He hit another homer in the third with one man on.

Coming from behind in the ninth with a three-run rally, the Cleveland Indians defeated the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 2. It was Wesley Ferrell's eighteenth mound triumph of the season.

Sport Vignettes

Kid Chocolate, who boxes Jack (Kid) Berg in New York Thursday night for the right to meet Al Singer for the world lightweight championship, first came to this country about two years ago and received a purse of $40 for knocking out one Eddie Enos in three rounds . . . . Since then the Cuban dandy has dragged down approximately $200,000 and is well on his way to a record of a half-million or more, a tremendous earning capacity for a ringman in a light class . . . . Chocolate weighed only 52 pounds when he began boxing as an amateur in Cuba six years ago . . . . He had 100 bouts as an amateur and never was defeated, winning 86 of them by knockouts . . . . His record remains untarnished after 67 professional battles . . . . His manager is Louis Guiterrez, who gave up his job as sports editor of a newspaper in Havana to handle the greatest little fighting machine of modern times . . . . Although he can make the featherweight limit of 126 pounds, Chocolate is meeting Berg at 134½ pounds. He already holds a victory over Singer in a 12-round bout . . . .

Kid Chocolate.

He was knocked down and held to a draw by Joe Scalfaro in 10 rounds in New York in 1928 and Scalfaro has been content to rest on those laurels . . . . Forty-four of the Keed's 66 professional victories have been by the knockout route, giving him the amazing kayo batting average of .657 for his 67 battles . . . . . His real name is Eligio Sardinias, and he is 23 years old . . . . Berg's real name is Judah Bergman, and he was born in the Whitechapel district of London, famous as the home stamping grounds of such ring notables as Ted (Kid) Lewis, Al Foreman, Pedlar Palmer, Alf Mansfield, Dick Burge, Matt Wells and Harry Mason. He is rated one of the best English lightweights of all time, and boasts a dynamic rushing style, along the lines of Pittsburgh's own Harry Greb . . . . He has three brothers and as many sisters, and is a former haberdashery clerk and motion picture camera operator . . . . His only defeat in this country was suffered in a bout with the hard-hitting Billy Petrolle . . . . Last year, Berg won the world junior-welterweight title from Mushy Callahan by a knockout in a bout in London, but he realizes this is a more or less synthetic title and that is why he wants to win the lightweight championship, which packs behind it a lot of tradition and prestige . . . . What are the two greatest ingredients in the making of "greats" in the realm of sports? An Eastern scribe sets them down as "class" and the competitive spirit, and who can say that he is wrong? . . . . In the first place, there is an axiom that "class always tells in the long run," and a fighting heart overcomes the obstacles in the way . . . . An athlete with plenty of heart and a certain amount of finish in the matter of skill generally arrives because he is at his best when the going is hardest . . . . Who can remember when the Scotch were the last word in the golfing scheme of things? . . . . It's the Americans who stand out in this field now . . . . Adolfo Luque, bordering on 40, and having one of his greatest seasons in the pennant drive of the Brooklyn Robins, scoffs at the report that pitching styles have changed because of the rabbit ball . . . . "Don't let 'em tell you that the good pitchers are cutting out their follow-through pitching motion for fear of being hit with line drives off the pitchers' bats," he says. "You can't be thinking of those things and be a winning pitcher. The main idea still is to put as much as you can on the ball, use your head, pitch to the batters' weaknesses and follow through." . . . . If Young Stribling finally manages to win the heavyweight championship, he'll be the first man from the South to turn that trick . . . . And Tommy Loughran, knocked out by Jack Sharkey and badly beaten by Ernie Schaaf, is rusticating at a New Jersey resort prior to pulling a comeback . . . . He denies he's all washed up and says he'll surprise everybody by regaining his old winning form . . . . He thinks he ought to be good for several more years and denies he's up against it financially . . . . Ad Wolgast, former lightweight champion, still in training for a championship fight that never will be fought, now is confined in the psychopathic ward of a California asylum . . . . His mind became a blank 10 years ago and he's groping in the past, harboring delusions of the fistic grandeur that he once knew . . . . For a long time he was permitted to roam about and train in a gymnasium, but lately he has been confined.—HARRY KECK.

HERRERA EASY WINNER OVER PILKINGTON

By HARRY KECK.
Sports Editor

It was one of those things.

That Tony Herrera-Jackie Pilkington "fight" at the Meyers Bowl last night.

Their third meeting, it ought to be their last. It's got to the point where Tony has to carry the New York Irishman along and Jackie isn't a good enough foil to fool the fans.

And, besides, the fans are getting smarter all the time and they saw through this one with their naked optics.

It was the old story of two out-of-town main-bouters giving the folks in the alleged sticks the old razzle dazzle just once more.

TONY EASES OFF

Pilkington beat Herrera in their first fight, in Chicago, when Tony broke a hand, and Herrera won the second. Last night, it wasn't a contest after the first few rounds, during which Pilkington shot over a flock of solid left hooks. Tony was too fast for him and too good a sharpshooter. But every time Tony nailed and hurt Pilkington, it would be Tony who would stop fighting and ease off until Jackie could get his bearings.

In the latter rounds, Tony used his right hand so sparingly as to spread the impression that he had hurt it again, but he informed the boxing commission physician, Dr. M. R. Goldman in the dressing room after the bout that he had not.

Beginning with the sixth round, Referee Al Grayber had to warn Pilkington to do some of the leading and the crowd was on Tony for letting up. Thereafter, in almost every round up to the last, Tony rocked his man, but then proceeded to carry him. In the ninth, the crowd goaded Tony to the point where he shot over a left and a right to the head that dropped the New Yorker for a count of nine on one knee. However, instead of following it up, he again eased off and let Pilkington come out of his trance.

They merely went through the motions in the last round.

Herrera won every round and the unanimous decision under wraps. He scaled 133¼ pounds against 131¼ for Pilkington at 3 p. m.—and we're glad that one's over.

SMALLWOOD BEATS BRANNON

The eight-round semi-final, put on after the main bout because of the threat of rain, was the best on the card. In it, Chet Smallwood, Akron southpaw, surprised the crowd by smacking and slapping his way to a decisive victory over Eddie Brannon, hard-hitting Negro, of the Hill, who found Chet's southpaw style and fast footwork too much to fathom. Smallwood weighed 138¼ pounds and Brannon 136¼.

Joe Lauder, of the South Side, 150¼, far from the fine prospect he once was, lost to Jerry Kucera, blonde puncher, of Brentwood, 149, in the six-round second bout, but got a break when the judges ruled it a draw, and Billy Campbell, of the South Side, 116¾, slugged it out with Georgie Tomosky, of Turtle Creek, 116¼, until he finally floored the latter for the full count in the third round of the opener.

The crowd was a fairly large one. It was announced that Joe Dundee, former welterweight champion of the world, and Buck McTiernan, of Swissvale, will box the main bout next Monday night.

Al Grayber and Jack Henderson alternated as referees, with Freddie Lux and Frank Perris doing the judging. A. C. Couch and Max Zeugschmidt were the timers and Ray Eberle did the announcing.

Between Rounds

Mike Dundee, of Rock Island, arrived in town yesterday and worked out in the Homestead A. C. gym, boxing two rounds with Jimmy Thomas for his 10-round windup with Tarkus Rodgers at Hickey Park, Mutrie, Thursday night. He will perform in the same gym again this afternoon.

Due to an ankle injury suffered by Urban, the Johnny Urban-Harry Williams bout scheduled for the semi-final at Hickey Park has been called off and a match arranged between Jimmy Dubonet, of Braddock, and Alex Gomez, of Akron, to take its place. Georgie Roviaro will box Georgie Fork in the second bout and Terry Waner meets Sammy Faris in the opener.

Tony Herrera and his manager, Ray Alvis, left immediately after last night's fight for New York where Herrera will take in the Max Schmeling-Jack (Kid) Berg fight at the Polo Grounds Friday night. Alvis will talk business with Frank Bruno, manager of Madison Square Garden, about a battle between Young Jack Thompson, the welterweight champion, who is under his management, and Jimmy McLarnin. Alvis also has plans for Little Sachs, Ind., Thompson and Tommy Freeman in Cleveland and with Young Corbett in San Francisco. He probably will take the Freeman match first.

Following is the amateur boxing card arranged by the Twenty-seventh Ward A. C. for its open-air arena on the North Side tonight: Sparky Kvale vs. Stewart Brown, Allen Kincaid vs. Ray Bronett, Max Elling vs. Young Stewart, Jim Fleming vs. Frank Riddick, Johnny Black vs. Jerry Opel, Jerry Trosky vs. Frank Dugi, Mike Pivlenko vs. Al Van Dor and Red McCue vs. Jack Wills.

Young Saylor, of Charleroi, and Billy Brent, Negro, of the Hill, who fought last unexpectedly in the 10-round bout at Hickey Park, Mutrie, last Thursday night, have been rewarded for the eight-round semi-final to the Rudy McTiernan-Joe Dundee 10-rounder at the Meyers Bowl next Monday night.

Prince Carrera, who has had his permit to remain in this country extended until the end of the year, will appear in a four-round exhibition at Forbes North-ern Sunday night, August 10, tonight, Bruce Flowers meets Tommy Grogan and Lee Falcon boxes Eddie Chinn in 10-rounders at the Queensboro Stadium, New York; Joey Latiere battles Eddie Mayer in an eight-round go at Jersey City tonight; Harry (Kid) Brown, Philadelphia veteran lightweight, tangles with hard-hitting Billy Townsend in Los Angeles; Leo Lomski boxes Fred Lenhart at Spokane, Wash., and Tracy Cox and Jerry Tuscano meet at Indianapolis. Dave Shade meets Joe Anderson at the Bravo Field, Boston, in a bout postponed from last night. Billy Angelo boxes Gaby Rappaz at Leipersville, Pa.

CARPENTERO FOULED

TOLEDO, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Leo C. Carpentero, Toledo bantamweight, won from Ossie Bertelet, Detroit, on a foul in the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round fight here last night. Referee George Lewis ruled that Carpentero had been fouled after warning of the Toledo boxing commissioner. Both boys were unable to agree. Rochie Marx, Minneapolis lightweight, was awarded the decision over Johnny Conley, Toledo, in six rounds.

DAVIS CUP PLAY

Since the French trimmed us so handily in the Davis Cup matches there have been the usual squawks, alibis, incriminations and what nots. It seems to me that for the present, at least, France has it on us when it comes to tennis. I was at Cannes in the winter of 1926 and saw the great match between Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills and also witnessed some flashy tennis by one Henri Cochet.

Knute Rockne

These French play the game in a superior manner. With La Coste back in the game again next year, it looks as if France is in for a protracted reign. We may as well quit squawking and give these French racqueters the credit which is their just due.

MINOR LOOP OPEN CONFAB

and Three-Eye, which have not been subject to the draft system since 1920, also may join the three leagues in the fight.

The non-draft minors insist the majors and not they are guilty of causing the dispute. At a joint meeting of the minors and majors at Kansas City in 1920, it was agreed that no minor league should be forced to accept the draft. The three AA leagues, together with the Three-Eye and Western, voted against it and refused it ever since although they have been requested, cajoled and threatened with a boycott.

MAJORS RETALIATE

In 1922, the majors followed their threat by refusing to send any of their players to the non-draft league clubs unless it was agreed that they be subjected to the draft. The five non-draft leagues finally accepted this demand after a year and the situation has been status quo ever since.

WOMEN, ROTARY GOLF EVENTS ON TODAY

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Two golf events are being played over local links today—one at the Country Club of Pittsburgh, where the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania is staging a one-day tournament, and another at the Alcoma Country Club, in Frankstown road, where the Rotary Clubs of Wilkinsburg and Oakmont-Verona are playing a team match.

In the women's event, the field is expected to be cut considerably due to the weather, although the Country Club layout remains a most popular playing ground among the women golfers.

PILKINGTON TAKES NINE COUNT

JACKIE PILKINGTON

REFEREE GRAYBER TONY HERRERA

The only knockdown of the 10-round main bout at the Meyers Bowl last night occurred in the ninth round, when Pilkington went down under a left and a right to the jaw and took a count of nine on one knee, as pictured above. Herrera had him in trouble several times, but always eased off until the danger was past, and the crowd booed the tame action.

By TOM BIRKS

Two big games will feature the Commercial and Industrial League schedule this evening. Reliance Life, winner of the first half flag and undefeated in the second half, will meet the Baltimore and Ohio nine at Burgwin Field.

Frank Rush has been priming the Railroaders for this battle and the Insurance boys will receive their supreme test of the second half race. Hurley will be on the mound for the Miller aggregation.

MINERS AT DRAVO

The other game will find the Mine Safety clashing with Dravo at the beautiful Neville Island grounds. Dravo Park is without a doubt the best looking sandlot diamond in the district and the teams welcome picking up grounders in that lot.

Wilmerding goes to North Bessemer this evening to meet Pete Elder's Club in the West Penn loop. The Airbrake nine is up in the race, but the Railroaders are sitting very handy.

In the Central League a real battle for the leadership looms at Dean Field when Fintex and Allegheny Collegians tangle. The Rounds boys will be seen in action opposing Tommy Carson's first half champions, and Sammy Leon or Walter Snee will try and stop the Clothes nine for the first time this half. Richards probably will hurl for the Fintex nine.

DOELFELS, CRIMSONS CLASH

The outstanding battle of the Steel City loop will be staged at Magee Field when two of the finest light first class teams in the Doelfels and East Liberty Crimsons meet in the eastern section of the loop. Should the Doelfels be successful, the Hazelwood team will have firm a grip on the second half title, but should the Crimsons again beat the leaders, then the race will be wide open. In the western section, DeMor clashes with Fox A. C.

The undefeated Broderick club, of the Minor League, will have the Melrose for its opposition this evening at Marshall Field. The Lawrenceville boys are going at a sensational clip and loom as likely second half champions.

Three games will be played in the City League. Two hard-hitting nines will tangle at Homewood playgrounds when the Book Shoe nine meets Daly's Homewood club. Gus Otey probably will oppose Bimmy Steele or Joe Semler. Pleasant Valley goes to the Dormont High School Field to meet Dormont. The third game finds Stowe Civics clashing with the North Side Civics at the Salt Works grounds.

HOMEWOOD WINS

Homewood took a 4-to-2 verdict over W. O. W. in a City League encounter last evening. In other city loop frays, Stowe defeated Book Shoe, 4 to 2, and the North Side Civics tied J. L. Thomas, 6-all.

gagement in Pittsburgh, pooh-poohed the three-cushion game during a discussion of billiards in general.

Hoppe said it wasn't billiards at all. It was all luck, and balkline was the only style of play that called for real skill. The three-cushion game could not live long. Willie had attended a league game at Johnny Kling's room in Kansas City and reported that there had been only 19 paid admissions.

Johnny Layton

BUT NOT ONLY has Hoppe since taken up three-cushions so seriously that he has been giving it the major portion of his time and attention during the last few years, but he is now one of those predicting it will be the real cue game of the future. In this he is supported by Johnny Layton, world champion, Arthur Thurnblad and others. Layton predicts that three-cushions will be the vedard of all international matches in the near future. It is held that with the system of playing the diamonds coming into widespread use, and all rising cuesists adopting this style of play, the angle sport will eventually surpass balkline in skill and popularity. As late as five years ago, many of the topnotchers contended that the eye was sufficient to guide the payer in making his shots, and they made no use of the diamonds along the table as guide posts. When younger players began to pass them by taking up the new system they began to change their minds and adopt the diamond custom.*

A GREAT CHANGE in the game has resulted. Twenty years ago a player was ranked as a star if he could make 50 points in fewer than 100 innings, an average of only .50 to an inning. Now the amateurs often make .70, while an average of one is not unusual for the professionals. In a match against Walker Cochran last winter, Hoppe turned in an average of 1.26.

Thurnblad points out that whereas a few years ago it was possible to tell where the cue ball would land on the third cushion on a bank shot, now, thanks to the perfection of the diamond system, players can tell exactly where the ball will strike on any number of cushions. The system has done away with guesswork.

STOGIES BEATS CHARLEROI, 5-4

The Wheeling Stogies emerged from what was beginning to be a decidedly serious appearing slump last night, defeating Charleroi, 5 to 4. The Stogies put on a two-run rally in the last half of the ninth to cop the verdict.

After the game, Bob Prysock, manager of the club, was released by the directors of the team. Danny Tapson, third baseman, was chosen temporary manager.

At Clarksburg, Fairmont defeated the Generals in a 10-inning battle, 6 to 5. Clarksburg took a four-run lead in the first inning, but failed to make it stand up.

Scottdale lost ground by bowing to Johnstown in a night game at Johnstown, 15 to 7. The Johnnies pounded out 15 safe hits, including home runs by Weber and Sharkey.

Cumberland crushed Jeannette under a 11-to-4 score at Cumberland. The game was the first night game to be played in the Maryland town.

hander, labored on the slab for the Pirates and turned back the Beaver countians with eight scattered hits, all of which were singles. He whiffed six of the Elwood hitters who faced him, and showed the stuff of which he is made by getting out of a tight place in the ninth inning.

The Pirates presented a somewhat patched lineup. Jim Mosolf played left field and batted in the cleanup position, which Howdy Grossgloss filled in at shortstop.

HOME TEAM THREATENS

The Bucs scored two runs in the fourth, one in the sixth and one in the ninth. In the home half of the ninth Ellwood City filled the bases on two singles and a walk, but Walter tightened up and turned back the next two hitters.

Today, at Charleroi, Vic Latrian, a 25-year-old Monessen recruit, is slated to pitch against the Pirates. The Governors won the Mid-Atlantic pennant last year, and are in the thick of the fight for the second half flag in this year's race. Jimmy Bradley is expected to twirl for the Bucs. Stella Walsh Sets New Century Mark

CORNWELL, Ont., Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Stella Walsh, Cleveland flier, bettered all previous records for the 100-yard dash yesterday when she ran the distance in 10 4-5 seconds. Miss Walsh's mark was established on Cornwall's new cinder track at the Canadian Legion field day games.

The previous record of 11 seconds flat was set by Rosa Grosse O'Neill, of Toronto, and equaled last winter by Miss Walsh at Boston.

Far West's Interest in Securities Grows; Two Stock Exchanges Built

By B. C. FORBES

IN THE WEST, Aug. 5.—Interest in securities has widened throughout the Far West. Two leading cities, San Francisco and Seattle, have established palatial exchange buildings, structures worthy of the foremost metropolitan cities on the continent.

Mr. Forbes

SEATTLE'S wonderfully beautiful structure, designed by the brilliant architect, John Graham, houses the city's various exchanges. San Francisco has a massive building for its stock exchange exclusively. It stands at Pine and Sansome streets, on a site once owned by James C. Flood, of Comstock fame and fortune, and later occupied by the United States sub-treasury.

The interior of the stock exchange rivals its exterior in dignified beauty. California's choicest woods, ablest brains, rarest raw materials have been generously drawn upon to enhance the attractiveness of the institution. The result is supremely creditable. (The cost was not counted with miser hand when the plans were made in the boom days of recent years.)

IN A TRADING room 68 by 122 feet, equipped just as modernly, as the New York Stock Exchange, dealings are conducted in some 40 stocks having a total of more than 155,000,000 shares worth almost six billion dollars. In the first half of this year the turnover in shares was greater than a year ago—but not in market value.

Talking of values, Californians have lost heavily by the severe shrinkage in two issues, Trans-America, the Giannini creation and Goldman Sachs. During my previous visit to San Francisco I sounded a warning that stocks were on a dangerous level, and I specifically mentioned the Giannini issues because the local people had gone crazy over them.

In a speech before some 800 business and financial men on this trip I ventured to express the view that securities, as a whole, have been unwarrantedly depressed.

THE S. F. STOCK Exchange, like its big New York brother, is conducting invaluable educational work through its affiliated institute, comprising not only employes of the exchange but partners and employes of member firms. The exchange's clearing house system is so advanced that it has attracted study by Eastern centers.

Another feature is a very elegant stock exchange lunch club, composed of members, firm partners and also executives of banks and corporations.

YES, STOCK exchanges are entering more largely into the life of the Pacific Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, not content with being recognized as the financial metropolis of the West, is laying important plans to develop its industrial potentialities. The city in recent years has attracted increasing attention from national corporations. Factories and other plants have been multiplying. But not as rapidly as the more progressive citizens desire. Frankly, the city has been less aggressive and alert than many others in winning new establishments from the outside. Now it is beginning to arouse itself.

THE TOTAL commerce of San Francisco Bay last year reached $3,488,748,000, a gain of $231,000,000 over 1928. The tonnage rise was from 41,019,000 to 47,076,000, fully 14 per cent. In round figures, foreign trade contributed 5,500,000 tons, intercoastal and coastwise 26,000,000 and internal waterways 15,500,000.

Few cities have under way or definitely planned as many large-scale public and other construction projects as San Francisco. The nation-wide lull in business activity has not blinded its vision to the growth that awaits this whole region.

THE FORBES column will be resumed after Mr. Forbes returns from his vacation in the latter part of this month.

N. Y. Curb Suspends Sutro & Co. Members

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Emil Sutro, of San Francisco, a member of the firm of Sutro & Co., which received a three-year suspension from the New York Stock Exchange for permitting infractions of the trading rules in connection with dealings in Manhattan Electrical Supply stock, was suspended today from associate membership in the New York Curb Exchange until September 2.

James H. McGean, who had been floor member of the firm on the New York Stock Exchange, was suspended from associate membership on the curb for three years, extending from the date of similar action by the stock exchange.

Bituminous Coal Production Gains

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Production of bituminous coal during the week ended July 26 increased 71,000 tons, or 0.9 per cent, as compared with the previous week. The present level, however, is appreciably under that of last year, as shown by the following comparison, prepared by the Mines Bureau: Week ended July 26, 7,993,000 net tons; preceding week, 7,922,000 net tons; same week last year, 9,607,000 net tons.

American Patents Used In Germany

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

AMERICA HAS DEVELOPED a new form of export trade. Since the war the exports of raw materials and manufactured products have grown rapidly. But the latest development involves no movement of commodities. Manufacturers are selling rights to use many of new chemical processes which have been perfected in laboratories here.

A few years ago the mention of chemical research immediately brought Germany to mind. But German industry now offers one of the greatest markets for the foreign rights for the use of American chemical processes. Germany has not stopped forging ahead in chemistry. A few years ago its great industrial organizations were solitary figures in many fields of experiment but today the work they are doing is being accompanied by a similar research here.

American manufacturers are still buying rights to new German processes but the trading in patents is no longer a one-sided affair. Corresponding transactions are being made by which German industry is paying royalty to many American corporations.

Developed Since the War

THE CHEMICAL INDUSTRY in this country received its first great stimulus during the war. Needs for munitions and for new materials forced American manufacturers to venture into new fields. The disruption of trade with Germany compelled this country to make its own dyes.

The end of hostilities left the infant chemical companies without markets but research solved the problem for many of them. Most of the products made by du Pont today are the outgrowth of processes developed in the war. This organization beat swords into plowshares when it turned its great munitions plants over to the production of paints, textiles and other products.

Du Pont Patents

SEVERAL OF THE PROCESSES perfected by the du Pont organization have taken a prominent place in the German chemical industry. Among these has been the method for making lacquer. The importance of du Pont's patents on German industry may be expected to show further growth in the future.

A Department of Commerce report recently named 10 American processes which have just been adopted by German companies on a large scale. It was also stated that a large number of other American processes are about to penetrate the German market.

Exchange Agreements Made

IN SOME CASES the patent rights have been sold in individual transactions. In others, agreements have been made between German and American firms for the interchange of patent information. One of the most important agreements of this kind was made by Standard Oil of New Jersey and I. G. Farben. The German company discovered a means of making gasoline from coal. The American company further developed the process to use it in getting a higher yield of gasoline out of petroleum. The two organizations are now co-operating in further research work.

In the by-product coke industry several American patents are being used in Germany to get higher yields of substances obtained from coal.

ASK RECEIVER FOR BOND CO.

BOSTON, Aug. 5.—(INS.)—Charging gross mismanagement and fraud, a group of New England bond owners have petitioned the Supreme Court of Maine to appoint a receiver for the American Bond and Mortgage Company, with central headquarters in Chicago, the Boston Evening American learned today.

A bill in equity has been filed in Augusta, Chief Justice W. R. Pattangall has issued an order of notice, which is returnable in Supreme Court at Augusta on Tuesday, August 12.

The action came as a bombshell in financial circles all over the country, because of the prominence and activities of the defendant corporation. The American Bond and Mortgage Company in the past 20 years is reputed to have done a business aggregating $150,000,000.

The complaining bond owners charge that the American Bond and Mortgage Company is on the brink of insolvency. They claim 41 issues have been defaulted.

BIG PIPE ORDERS HELP STEEL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 5.—Definite improvement in the steel industry of the Mahoning and Shenango Valleys is seen this week by producers in several factors which determine demands for rolled steels.

Announcement by the Republic Steel Corporation of the booking of additional large pipe orders, with other awards pending, will mean employment of large groups of men on a more regular basis. Resumption of work by some of the Michigan automobile plants is another favorable factor for the Youngstown district mills. Declaration by the Fourth Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland that stocks in manufacturers' and dealers' hands are low and that credit conditions are satisfactory, is another factor making for improved conditions.

C. I. T. REPORTS HIGHER NET

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Commercial Investment Trust Corporation, specializing in instalment and other forms of industrial financing, reports net profits amounting to $4,733,633 for the six months ended June 30, against $4,042,116 for a like period a year ago.

The net income, representing a 17 per cent increase over the same period a year ago, was the largest earnings for a first half year period in the history of the company. Earnings for the six months were equal to $1.53 per common share on the average number of shares outstanding during the period, against $2.24 a share in the first half of 1929, calculated on the number of shares before the 2½ for 1 splitup last October.

Commenting on business, president Henry Ittelson said:

"The large part of the receivables which were outstanding at the beginning of the year, have matured and have been paid, and most of those outstanding at June 30, 1930, were acquired during the preceding six months. While the ratio of charge offs for uncollectable receivables has been above normal it has not been excessive."

Business Failures Increase in July

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—Curb stocks held steady in a continuation of the dull trading today. A few issues moved out of the rut, but the market on the whole was content to fluctuate fractionally.

With the utilities dormant and the oils almost equally lifeless, there was some switching by traders to the specialty group. Ford, Limited, was the favorite and became the most active stock on the board under support that carried it more than 3 points higher, a wide move for this issue. One of the large investment trusts is reported to have taken a position in the issue, but today's activity was apparently the result of pool operations. Ford of Canada "A" improved slightly in sympathy.

Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list, 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Tone Firmer — Local Trading Quiet

STEEL MOUNTS, MARKET TONE FIRMER

Favorites Active, but General Trading Listless; Call Loan Rate Boosted

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP.)—The bull troupe continued to perform rather wearily to an all but empty house in today's stock market, but failed to show any signs of discouragement.

U. S. Steel was bid up moderately to new high ground for the current recovery above 170, and a few other pool favorites were turned over rather actively. Bulls still failed to develop any notable following, however, and while floor transactions reflected some stimulation, commission houses were all but idle.

GRAINS AFFECT TRADING

The severe drought damage to crops in the Central West tended to accentuate speculative uncertainty, particularly on reports of heavy rains over certain areas, causing a substantial setback in the cotton market. On sober second thought, Wall street could not interpret any major domestic crop catastrophe very bullishly, although it might end the depression in grain prices.

A little more bullish attitude was taken toward the wheat market, however, particularly since indications of a short crop in France.

Business news coming to hand was mildly favorable. In addition to the better tone in the grain markets, non-ferrous metals are a little firmer, notably lead. Bradstreet's commodity price index as announced for August 1, showed a decline of only 1 per cent from July 1, but was the lowest since November 1, 1925.

CHRYSLER REPORT

Chrysler reported July sales only about 20 per cent below July of 1929, relatively the best showing so far this year. Passing the Marmon dividend occasioned no surprise. Standard Brands came nearer to earning its 37½ cent quarterly dividend in the second quarter, with net equal to 31 cents a share, as increased from 26 cents in the first quarter.

The full effects of the August 1 settlements, delayed a little by the fact that the week-end intervened immediately after the first, resulted in marking up the call loan rate from 2 to 2½ per cent, but the long term credit outlook remained favorable, as was attested by an easier tone in time money.

The stock exchange monthly collateral loan statement, showing a decrease of about 1 per cent, was favorable in view of the fact that stocks generally showed a substantial net gain for the month. Gold continued to flow to France, and movement to London appeared to be imminent.

LOAN BUYERS LAX

Although wholesale buyers, with only a month left to Labor Day, have not been very active in the New York markets of late, some pickup in retail trade is viewed as a seasonal certainty, and the merchandising shares were bid up more actively than for some time. Macy gained more than 3 points, and Woolworth, Kresge, Sears-Roebuck and Simmons made moderate gains.

Operations for the advance were again pressed forward in Standards of New Jersey and California, Radio, the American Tobacco shares, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, Electric Power and Light, Mack Truck, Hudson, and Loews were among issues rising 1 to more than 2 points.

Vanadium and Warner Bros. rose substantially in short covering. The bull activity in General Motors lost some of its vitality, however, and American Can and American Telephone sagged under profit-taking for a time.

Swift & Company Sells Subsidiary

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Swift & Co. has sold the patents, patterns and good will of its packing house subsidiary, Mechanical Manufacturing Company, to Allbright Nell Company for about $2,000,000.

CRUCIAL TEST FACED BY BUSINESS

Demand for Leaders Not Met by Supply; Public Taken Into Confidence

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—With business facing crucial problems in connection with the economic readjustment, large capitalists are more than ever before in quest of major executives of outstanding ability.

The demand exceeds the apparent supply of men of the caliber of Owen D. Young, Clarence Woolley, Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., Matthew S. Sloan and James Farrell. The great need is for integrating geniuses who can co-ordinate the activities of specialists.

M. S. Rukeyser

In giving the prescription, W. J. Donald, director of the American Management Association, said:

DEMAND FOR LEADERS

"Present-day business calls for a higher grade all-around business executive than we have ever had since the arrival of the era of big business. Experience in business is part of the educational process; the job needs to be recognized as having educational potentialities. One of the problems of today is too great specialization, which prevents a man from gaining experience in all the phases of manufacturing operations; thus they are not prepared for the time when they might be promoted into more of a line operation. They are apt to become a disintegrating force within the organization.

"One of the most fundamental principles of organization is the principle of locatable and centralized responsibility. Promotion to major factory executive positions calls for an understanding of the four most important phases of modern-day factory operations: personnel management, office management, cost accounting and research.

"In this time of rapidly growing large scale operations the need is for men who are able to co-ordinate the work of specialists."

There is a tendency to regard business statistics too solemnly. Prosperity, at least in a superficial sense, is promoted by making frivolities, such as lip sticks and rouge, as well as by making iron girders and bridges, although the latter may be more socially useful. From an economic standpoint, the effective test of value is merely whether things are desirable and desired. In a long-faced survey of business, the somber Bradstreet's confirms common observation by alluding to the new boom in miniature golf courses as a palliative which helps swell the demand for labor. "The miniature golf course," it points out, amid comment on droughts and industrial activity, "as a possible source of considerable employment is stressed in reports from Los Angeles, which city reports immense activity and big outlays of money to fit up hundreds of these for playing purposes."

NEW VOGUE SPREADS

The new vogue appears to be nationwide, and is offering an outdoor alternation to contract bridge, cross-word puzzles, mah jong, and things like that.

The mythical union of newspaper writers should take cognizance of the new competition from ex-office holders. Calvin Coolidge started the new fashion, and the latest convert is Thomas F. Woodlock, who resigned from the Interstate Commerce Commission. But Mr. Woodlock merely has to restore his union card, having long been a writer. He is merely returning to the ranks, and his resumption of writing activities is good news. Theodore Roosevelt, when he retired from the presidency, joined the Outlook, and set the precedent of journalism as an answer to what to do with ex-presidents. His advent to that publication was a stirring event, which for a time stimulated circulation and advertising. As time advanced, however, T. R. raised the journalistic stick against alleged abuses of big business, and the competition of advertisers to get into the publication became less insistent.

ABANDON SECRECY

Since public pessimism has exaggerated the situation in investment trusts, these organizations have tended to forsake earlier policies of secrecy and to take the public in their confidence to a greater extent in respect to the securities held in their portfolios and other details of operations. When the public mind was inflamed with optimism during the bull markets, the policy of hiding earnings and assets led the public to exaggerate the good points. But now the shoe is on the other foot. As a matter of public policy, full, frequent and prompt publicity in corporate matters is a safeguard to the outside investor.

France has effective farm relief for wheat growers, who are receiving far more than prevailing world prices. But the relief is making suckers out of French consumers. The government has a very high import duty on wheat, and also pays a bounty on exports. French farmers miscalculated the weather, expecting a larger crop, and exported too much. Now there is a shortage, and wheat must be reimported over the high tariff wall. The situation, which temporarily plays into the hands of the French wheat growers, emphasizes the opera bouffe characteristics of present day tariffs, which reflect economic nationalism running riot.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—The pace of bond trading quickened today as a better inquiry developed for railroad issues and a few utility obligations. The market ruled steady to firm.

A total of $37,790,000 in bonds were marketed today after starting the week with not a solitary offering. The bulk of the day's financing was contributed by two large issues, the $20,000,000 5½ per cent issue of the Ontario Power Service Corporation and $15,000,000 5½ per cent offering of Paramount Publix Corporation. There is some prospect it is reported in financial circles that the Chesapeake Corporation may float a new bond issue to finance its purchase of additional stock of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad. About $20,000,000 is said to be needed.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—(AP)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

DAILY TRUE STORY

Adventure

Hill Norton was fed up.

His real name, by the way, was Hilgrade Jesserand Norton. At college they called him "Hill," but now, at home, he was called "Hilgrade." His doting mother, his aunt, who married a prince; his senior cousin, who was in the diplomatic service, all called him Hilgrade. So did the young ladies of his mother's social set.

Hilgrade breakfasted in his room, attended by his valet. He went and did where and what his mother's society friends did. He dressed for dinner, he played polite contract and danced well and had a nice line of society chatter.

And he was fed up!

He wanted to be called Hill and he wanted to have adventures.

He was sick of dress shirts and pearl studs and the "stuffed shirts" he met inside the dress shirts. He was sick of taking this or that society damsel or matron or dowager in to dinner and listening to the puffle. If he could sit down to dinner in his shirt sleeves now and then and dive into a platter of boiled spare ribs and sauerkraut the way he did at Thad Dutton's place, that would be bliss!

Hill Norton glancing through the newspaper saw the usual advertisements. People were driving to Florida or to the coast and wanted a companion to go with them and help defray the expenses.

It looked like a swell idea.

He might get hold of some likable chap, they'd drive to the coast, live along the way, eat hot dogs, wear khaki and never once have to drag themselves up to a room where Perkins had laid out "the young master's evening clothes."

And so, on the excuse at home that he was going on a long trip in Reggie Upton's yacht, Hill Norton managed to arrange it. He had advertised:

TO COAST IN GOOD CAR—Young man wants agreeable companion to defray half expenses. H. J. NORTON.

He knew that none of his people would suspect that this H. J. Norton was Hilgrade Jusserand Norton.

Gets Reply

A letter came, typewritten on the business stationery of an importing house. It read:

H. J. Norton—Sir: Am going to Coast on three-month vacation. Would you mind driving around to Petersen's garage at 9 tomorrow night so I may talk with you and see car? P. H. LARKIN.

Hill Norton was determined to go through with it. His people might rave if they knew, but Hill Norton was quite independent. The fortune his late grandfather had left him was some three times more than the fortune his late father was enabled to leave entirely to his mother.

And it is quite true, remember, that Hill was more like his sturdy old grandfather, who went in for dollars instead of society.

H. J. Norton drove around to Petersen's garage at nine the next night. He had shucked his evening clothes after dinner and put on a blue serge. His car was not the block-long imported one from his garage, where were housed three others, it was a high-class American-made car as sterling as the dollar itself.

Petersen's garage had dim lights inside. Hill, as he was to be henceforth, drove in.

"I'm looking for P. H. Larkin," he said.

"Hey, Paul, here's a guy to see you!" shouted the untidy garage worker.

A smallish young man with black curly hair came out from the little office. He was smoking a cigaret. Hill noticed that he wore a friendly grin and that his gray suit was neat but evidently never tailor-made.

"That the car?" Larkin asked.

"Yes."

Young Larkin exhaled a cloud of smoke and walked around it.

"Better than I expected, brother—darned good car. When do we start?"

It amused Hill to note that the young chap gave the car but a single glance as he walked around it and after that sized up his probable coast-to-coast companion.

"I can start tomorrow—are your people willing?" Hill asked.

"Sure."

"You're rather young, why I asked."

"I'm 21."

"All right. My name is Hilgrade, but I'll throw you out on your neck if you call me anything except 'Hill,'" he explained.

The young chap flashed a friendly grin.

"My name is Paul. I've been a bookkeeper. What do we do, stop at hotels?"

Plans Completed

"Oh, yes; hate to take a trailer."

"Suits me, Hill. I'll pay for half the gas and oil and half the repair expenses, but I always room by myself."

"O. K., Paul."

"Shall I put up some money in advance?"

"Oh, no. Where shall I call for you?"

"Right here. I live in the city but I'll stay with my uncle—he's Petersen—tonight in this suburb. Meet you here anytime. What shall we wear?"

"Anything."

"Better wear gray or khaki—blue serge will look like gray in no time."

"Well, how about 4 o'clock?"

"Oh, I want to start before then—by noon, anyway."

"Noon? I meant four in the morning, Hill."

"Good idea—see you here at four tomorrow dawning."

Hill drove out to the big suburban place. His people were in town and would stay at the town house that night. Hill packed up, amazed cook by borrowing her alarm clock, and at three next morning was foraging in the pantry for food. At four he picked up Paul, who wore a cap, gray flannel shirt and knickers tucked into leather leggins. Hill wore a polo shirt and riding breeches, with leggins as the nearest thing he could rake up at such short notice.

The last stars were fading as Paul's big pigskin Gladstone bag was tossed in back and they started.

Oh, Paul said, "I forgot to mention that I can drive, but I haven't any driver's license, however, when we get out West my uncle says we won't need one and I can relieve you at times."

Great! Paul, swell," Hill agreed. "You've been sickly, haven't you?"

Why, er, for a while I'm getting husky now."

They rode and talked, commented on billboards and passing scenery, and soon found them high in the mountains.

We should have stopped and stocked up on eats," Paul said ruefully. "We won't strike a place for miles, according to this map, and I could eat the grease out of the bearings. I'm so hungry."

Goes Fishing

Hill turned off into a grassy opening by the side of the road near a stream. He took a hamper out of the car trunk. It was the sort of a hamper millionaires use and Paul's eyes bulged.

"Fix up the luncheon under the tree. I'm going to try for a trout," Hill said.

He fitted his rod, cast in a pool under a ledge and brought back six good ones. Then he started the little gasoline stove and Paul sat down to a real feast — trout, bacon, tinned fruits, bread and all the fixings. He even took a nip from Hill's flask.

"I'll get some more trout and put them in the ice box," Hill said, showing the little ice box arrangement in the trunk.

Hill went downstream quite a distance and had great luck at the foot of a waterfall. He hurried back and just as he arrived he heard some cursing.

A husky tramp was trying to carry off the hamper and Paul was trying to fight him. The tramp was twice the size of Paul.

"Hey!" called Hill.

The tramp turned and sized him up.

He told Hill where to go, but, instead of that, Hill walked over to him. The tramp sat down the hamper. Hill ducked the tramp's "haymaker" and socked him down. For only two minutes it lasted. Hill's training with the gloves was too much for the tramp, who crawled over to the stream to get cold water on his eyes and keep them from closing entirely.

Hill and Paul drove away.

"Hill," said Paul, "you are one swell guy. I hope this trip will make me big and strong, like you."

"Sure it will," Hill said.

Paul drove for a while to let Hill bandage up his cut knuckles.

Four days found them across the plains and in the foothills.

A breakdown delayed them. Paul sure knew motors and was better able to repair the break than Hill. But it was dark when they finished.

"I'll get some wood for a fire," Hill said. "We'll eat what junk we have left and sleep on blankets here."

"Suits me."

They made the little fire. Paul went down to get water from a little rill for the coffee. It was down at the foot of a long slope.

Something suddenly hit Hill on the head and he collapsed.

He heard curses and yells finally and sat up.

Another Fight

Poor Paul was having a terrible fight with some husky man. Hill blinked. There was another man on the ground with his head bleeding, but Paul was down now and being beaten. Hill got to his feet and staggered to the car where he got his gun.

"Stick 'em up—reach!" Hill yelled.

The man reached. The other man got up and staggered about until he saw Hill and the gun.

Both men turned and ran into the shrubbery in the blackness of the night while Hill rushed to help Paul.

"Poor gamey kid," he said. "They tore the clothes off him, almost."

Paul groaned. Hill reached down to lift him up and stood staring. Paul blinked and sat up.

"Oh!" said Paul.

Hill went to the car and came back with a blanket.

"Like heck your name is Paul—you're a girl," Hill said.

"It's Pauline — and I — I wanted adventure and I knew when I saw you that you were a gentleman—and now I've got to go back—and mother's on the Coast and my ribs feel like they were broken" she sobbed.

He cared for her through the night. He drove her to the next town in the morning.

"I'll take you to a doctor to have that rib fixed, if you'll let me take you to a minister first, so I can explain without embarrassment that you are my wife."

"I won't—if that's the only reason!"

"You are a swell pal and you'll make a swell wife and you do as I say—sweetheart."

She did.

Proposed bar association rule will prohibit defense attorneys from "grimacing, smiling or winking at jurors."

Justice, however, will continue to wink as usual.

Might blindfold the attorneys —or better still, the jurors. Or try all cases in the dark.

Thus the attorneys would have a better chance to concentrate on the chief issue—which is getting at the pocketbooks of the litigants.

EXONERATION III

Paloohas luckless who have not
Had of success an awful lot,
No effort need to exercise
In showing how they made their rise,
Nor must they from pure logic swerve
To prove they got what they deserve.

While gents who have achieved success,
Just why the gods alone can guess,
Must trouble themselves to invent
Sage reasons for the way things went,
And bravely try to look like guys
Whose talents are of mammoth size.

So blessed are the poor—in part—
Who do not have to be so smart.

Senate Investigation of Election Is Encouraging

Those who are interested in safeguarding the honesty of our elections—and that means a large majority of the citizens—will welcome the action of United States Senator Gerald P. Nye in summoning a number of Pittsburgh politicians and officeholders to Washington for questioning in regard to the recent primary. Nye is chairman of a special committee investigating the election. By reason of the committee's authority, the fact that the investigators can see things from a more detached viewpoint than is possible to persons closer to the scene, and also the fact that they have no selfish personal interest to serve, this inquiry gives promise of being more fruitful than any of the others.

Senator Nye has shown a disposition to overlook nothing that offers a chance of throwing light on irregularities in the primary. There is great encouragement for the friends of a pure ballot in his evident determination to go to the bottom of charges that have been made here.

Especially interesting is the committee's manifest intention to inquire into the work of the Recount Board. The public would like to know what became of the missing voters' list of the First District of the Sixth Ward, and would appreciate information on various other matters which Judge James R. Macfarlane, who is responsible for the Recount Board, has refused to discuss.

Naming of Miss Soffel As Judge Is Gratifying

In appointing Miss Sarah Soffel a judge of the County Court, to succeed Judge Sylvester J. Snee, elevated to the Common Pleas bench, Gov. John S. Fisher has given Allegheny County Pennsylvania's first woman jurist.

In inquiring into the fitness of Miss Soffel for the appointment there is no need to raise the question of her sex. Women have now been in public life long enough to make that unnecessary. We have had women justices of the peace whose service has compared favorably with that of men magistrates. And Ohio has furnished us in Judge Florence Allen, of the Supreme Court, an outstanding example of the fitness of the sex for the bench.

Miss Soffel has a good record as an attorney. She has been engaged in general practice and has the reputation of being learned in the law. She has taken a healthy interest in public affairs, including politics, but has not been a politician, as we understand the term. We believe Judge Soffel will serve the people ably and honestly. The appointment is gratifying.

Progress in Fight Against Pneumonia

The report from Washington that physicians at St. Elizabeth's Hospital have discovered a remedy for pneumonia, so effective in more than 200 tests that it is "virtually a specific," is of particular interest to Pittsburgh because, among acute infections, pneumonia leads here as a cause of death. Furthermore, it is no secret that Pittsburgh's death rate from the disease is higher than that of most cities.

Pittsburgh has taken a leading part in the fight against pneumonia. This city was the first to classify the disease as an acute infection in which the patient should be isolated and the room quarantined. The regulation went into effect April 1, 1924. Several important investigations of pneumonia have been conducted here, and one of the purposes of the smoke investigation now being made by the Mellon Institute is to see if there is any relationship between atmospheric pollution and susceptibility to the disease.

In view of all these things the reported discovery at the Washington hospital is of the first importance to Pittsburgh. But it would be unwise to jump to the conclusion that pneumonia is soon to become as rare as smallpox.

In this connection Dr. P. E. Marks, superintendent of the Bureau of Infectious Diseases in the Pittsburgh Department of Public Health, gives valuable advice. Dr. Marks, who is not convinced that the Washington cure is all that is claimed for it, points out that pneumonia generally follows a neglected cold, and that if the patient will take care of the cold he will escape the more serious disease.

Whether or not, then, the St. Elizabeth's Hospital treatment fulfills expectations, the sensible thing to do to guard against this dangerous disease pneumonia is to go to bed when you contract a bad cold and stay there until you are better.

State Traffic Court Serves Useful Purpose

The new traffic court opened in Pittsburgh yesterday under the auspices of the safety section of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles should have a wholesome effect on the automobile situation. It is not a court in the ordinary sense, but an inquisitorial office which will conduct investigations of motor accidents. Inasmuch as the penalty that will follow its verdict of guilty will be revocation of the offender's driving license, it is certain to be regarded with profound respect.

To be sure, the State Highway Department has long been revoking the licenses of certain offenders against the automobile laws. But the penalty did not dangle so conspicuously before the eyes of reckless motorists when all the action in the case took place in Harrisburg. With testimony taken here the possible consequence of criminally negligent driving will be more prominently brought to public attention.

Inspector C. C. Ferguson, in charge of the new traffic court, states that his hearings will have to do for the most part with cases in which drunken drivers are implicated. Any agency that promises to remove from the highways this menace to safety is to be acclaimed.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

Whatever it be which thus inevitably ages within us, its rate of ageing is very different in different animals. Very aged mice attain four years, while elephants do not begin to be old till they have passed the half-century. But on the other hand mice live faster than elephants. The pulse-rate of a mouse is over 10 times that of an elephant, so measured in heart-beats the lives of mouse and elephant come to very much the same total. And mice move and therefore presumably think more rapidly than elephants do. If we could discover the reason for this difference, the reason why a mouse gets through its life more than 10 times as quickly as an elephant, we should perhaps have a method of prolonging life by simply slowing it up, which would be more effective than merely tinkering with the glands as they give out—although it would not necessarily be more satisfactory, since we should merely have the same amount of real living expanded to fill a longer span of years. But that belongs to the speculative future; we must return to the actual present.

H. G. Wells

Steinach's results have been confirmed and extended by others such as Sand. Dogs, sheep, goats and cattle have thus been successfully rejuvenated.

The claims made by Voronov that testis-grafts in rams induce not only an increase in vigor in the animals themselves, but a hereditary improvement in the quality of the wool of their descendants, are apparently quite without confirmation.

What of the application of the method to man? Here, too, many successes have been claimed, and Voronov has introduced a new method by using bits of chimpanzee testis for grafts, instead of waiting for the rare accidents when a human being has to have his testis surgically removed.

Such grafts from one species to another are always resorbed within a month or two, so that whatever lasting rejuvention they may cause must be due to some effect exerted on their host's system during the first few weeks.

Much less has been done with women. X-ray treatment of the ovaries appears to have something of the same stimulating effect as tying the vas in men.

And now that one at least of the female sex-hormones has been isolated, we may perhaps be able to use it for rejuvenating the whole feminine system. Already a preliminary experiment on female rats has proved successful, and we may expect events to move fast.

In judging the results, we must remember that man is a suggestible animal; we do not know how much of an improvement could be produced solely by belief in the efficacy of the treatment. But when we have discounted this, there remain some cases which seem to have achieved an often striking success.

Several patients have come back after a spell of renewed maturity for a second treatment; and one was so overcome by the restoration of vigor after years of decrepitude that he drank himself into a delirium tremens!

But before we can come to a sober judgment on the value and the limitations of the treatment, much further work is needed, and the introduction of a more scientific spirit into the whole subject.

Even if the work on rejuvenation has not opened up any rosy vista of perpetual youth, it holds forth promises of a reasonable extension of healthy middle-age.

It does no more than provide a convenient source of male sex-hormone. Every time a man or woman takes a thyroid tablet he is using thyroid hormone prepared for him by a sheep; but he does not become sheep-like in consequence. If the male sex-hormone could be injected or given in tablet form, grafting would be unnecessary; but until it has been chemically isolated, grafting is one of the few available methods.

Those who would like to prevent testis-grafting should also start a campaign against the use of insulin, thyroid, pituitrin and adrenalin.

THE POWER AGE

By Archibald Henderson

Before our eyes, under our noses, a new era is being ushered in. A new civilization is developing almost over night, a new culture is evolving contemporaneously with this new industrial civilization. Science has laid its mighty hand upon all life; and we are reacting to it in all our activities and functions. A new type of thought is spreading from scientific research centers. A new philosophy is forming beneath its spell.

It is too soon to assess the significance of these changes. But it cannot be doubted that a new type of highly trained mentality is developed as a natural concomitant of the power age. As C. F. Hirshfeld says in Toward Civilization: "There is certainly a growing appreciation of the fact that while a mind trained to think in the involved and abstruse realms of science is certainly trained along very different lines from that of the scholar of earlier ages, it may be that this new type of training represents a form of mental culture just as ethically and aesthetically valuable, as well as just as humanly satisfying, as the older type which formed at least the foundation upon which could be erected an edifice representing the true culture of its day."

The machine, properly viewed, is a symbol as well as a fact, representing the extensions into space and time of man's power. Through power, man has consciously achieved greater mobility and greater leisure. The worker now gives from 48 to 60 hours of his time per week to his employer. Allowing for eight hours sleep nightly, the worker has 64 working hours which he can call his own. Of course, these are not all leisure hours, even for those who do not work. For they include time spent in eating, dressing, traveling to factory or club, and other minor personal affairs. But let us say that the worker has 40 hours of leisure time exclusively his own. The time is approaching, through alterations in industrial practice, when he will have 30 hours entirely his own.

Moreover, there has accrued an economic balance in the form of increased wages, which have come in spite of the shortening of hours. The new workman has money, not only for cars, radios, household appliances and the like, but also to build better homes and rear healthier families. Thus "out of the leisure has come the physical extension in time and out of the surplus have come the means for the physical extension in space. The worker and his family now have time in which to do things other than those required for the obtaining of bare subsistence and the surplus enables them to spend the leisure time more or less pleasantly and, in a non-commercial sense, profitably."

"Bugs" Baer Says:

Dipping Diplomats

In a rough, manly sort of way we agree with the presidential ukase that our sisterly republic shall pay for no more liquor for our diplomats.

This may ruin many diplomatic careers.

But the innocent shall suffer with the gilt-edged.

"Bugs" Baer

War is war. And peace isn't much better.

Now, we know from some very prolific hearsay, that all the embassies and legations in Washington have cellars in which a rum-hound could chase Eliza across the cracked ice to his heart's content. And also to the content of many bottles.

But, in the American diplomatic garages there is no liquor. Our boys are as dry as a top shelf in a museum. You can walk past the Bulgarian diplomatic outposts and you will hear a gurgling like unto much bursted plumbing. The English, the French and the Turks also help themselves to laughing powders and hilarious mucilage.

If an American diplomaniac wants to start a fight he has to go out and buy his own boiler compound. The President is triply correct when he says there is no such thing as diplomatic liquor. They stopped making that stuff in 1918.

Even the most rabid dryster must admit that things always look brighter over a drink.

Much brighter. Fact is, take one drink of that furniture fluid they sell now and a match resembles a forest fire.

But most of the world's diplomacy is accomplished with a bottle between the envoys. Victory depends on who is cracked with the bottle. The cracker, or the man who swings the decanter, is then made an ambassador plenipotentiary with powers extraordinary to sign treaties, negotiate loans, etc.

When the government broadsides a weather report that it will pay for no more diplomatic liquor, we naturally get the suspicion that there has been booze and that somebody has been drinking it.

Now, as every citizens pays his income tax, lives a righteous life and is at all times willing to shoulder a musket for his country in the city, why shouldn't he also get his pro rata of the stuff that brings you to a slow boil and increases patriotism by leaps and richochets? Shall we share all of the sorrows and none of the joys?

We have always wanted to enter the diplomatic service and carry 17 mysterious black bags like Ambassador Gerard. Or, until we learned the business and current prices, we would have been satisfied with a portable portfolio and a roving commission.

Abroad With A New Yorker

By O. O. McIntyre

POTSDAM.—From Leipzig to Potsdam is a checkerboard of villages with visible criss-crossing beams of deep German blue, bilious green and chocolate brown. They shiver on the edge of glowering black forests. You think of Red Riding Hood. But modernity swallows antiquity—and the quaint peasant country is soon behind.

Potsdam, on a wooded island, has a population of 65,000 and offers much of the tranished royal trappings of Versailles. Its landscaping and architecture are the handiwork of its beloved philosopher-ruler, Frederick the Great. If one is awed by royal dust in cathedral crypts, Potsdam produces a reverential hush.

Yet at the gates of Potsdam I indulged an operatic furore like a temperamental tenor. For 10 days I have been a human anachronism—living in the past, poking about musty tombs, tiptoeing about ruined palaces. I want to see something new and alive. I could skip up and kiss the Chrysler Building.

I gave members of my party a pain in the neck by delivering a heated peroration on horrors of the past. I left Leipzig on the fly without breakfast and my nerves were raw from incessant gadding. So I refused to budge off a Potsdam cafe porch until I packed away a mess of sausage that would sweat a mouse to run around.

Then I was dragged through famous Sansouci Park and over the bridge to the palace of Frederick the Great. In another mood it would have been impressive, but I had more fun enjoying my pout. We also visited the new palace where the Kaiser lived when not spending the four months' period in the Berlin palace.

I gained a distinct impression Potsdam either wants the Kaiser back or a similar symbol of monarchy. Potsdam for centuries has been the seat of regal rule and chafes under the new order. "Everybody had a job when Wilhelm ruled," said a tavern keeper. "But now only a few work."

We walked along the Kaiser's favorite path in Sansouci where he is reputed to have spent sleepless nights before throwing down the gauntlet. Potsdam has more tourists than ever.

The Kaiserin Augusta Victoria is buried in Sansouci park and a simple tomb has been erected. She remained in Potsdam after the Kaiser took refuge in Holland and joined him in 1918, returning to Germany for a pathetic farewell before she passed on in Holland in 1921. She is revered and at each anniversary of her passing services are held at her resting place. Stores close and homes are shuttered all over the Fatherland. The Kaiser waited a year and a half before marrying his wife's best friend. The present Kaiserin is not liked. Her name inspires disdainful shrugs.

We drove to the former home of the Crown Prince in another part of Potsdam. It was the home of Wilhelm, too, when he was a Crown Prince, and is called "The Marble Palace"—half white marble and half red brick—on the edge of an enormous mirror like lake.

The Crown Prince divides time between his Unter den Linden office and his farm in East Germany. One of his sons, a chip off the old block, was recently involved with a movie actress. Another son is being educated in South America. The Crown Princess Cecelia is popular. She received wholehearted sympathy when the Crown Prince was "going the pace" and making frequent trips to Paris. His plight has steadied him. He is a devoted family man these days, but still reminds me of a fox.

Between Potsdam—20 miles from Berlin—and Berlin is the Wannsee, the recreation park and woods Berliners love so well. It is always filled with athletes, nature lovers and pleasure seekers. We got off on a bicycle path, barred to motorists, and received a ripe Teutonic raspberry. I hoped to be arrested and have the car confiscated. It isn't mine and I've had enough. But instead a cop with a smile tried to sell tickets to some benefit. And if you think we didn't each buy a couple as quick as that you are silly. On to Berlin—and don't spare the carburetor!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

I don't know much about souls. Some say we haven't any—that when the body dies, the game is up. Maybe so. Maybe not. But of this, I'm sure there's something divine in every man, something that stands tall and strong and bright above his common life and that will help him over the bumps, if he'll cling to it. And that thing is his SELF RESPECT.

Not his pride nor his conceit—pride and conceit are very different from self-respect. Pride and conceit, they're tied up with the flesh, with the animal beginnings of a man. Dogs and horses have pride—monkeys and parrots have conceit. But Self Respect—that's something else, something older and higher—more mysterious.

Remember the story of creation—how God "formed man of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul . . . so God created man in his own image." A strange story and a universal one. You'll find some version of it in the religion of every people. AND YOU'LL FIND THE TRUTH OF IT IN THE HEART OF EVERY MAN.

We are of dust, very dusty dust at that. But within that dust there's something finer than our natural earthiness—a greater, lovelier Self—than that moving clay which bears our name. You know that greater Self lives in you. I know it lives in me. Seldom, seldom do we prove it in our daily acts. But we know it is there—we believe in it, though all the world doubt. We believe in and love that secret Self, because it represents all that we know of truth, all that we desire of courage, all that we dream of beauty. It is the nearest thing to God. It is, indeed, the image of God . . . as much of God as we are able to comprehend. And we wistfully worship that image.

That is the true meaning of SELF-RESPECT. It is a man's respect not for his outward self but for the dream of God which inhabits him—NOT FOR THE MAN HE IS, BUT FOR THE MAN HE'D LIKE TO BE.

Do not sneer at a man's belief in his Self. To you he may seem a very paltry person without reason for Self Respect. But, regardless of what he has done, the image within him is just as sacred as the image within you. . . And if God could take a chance on him, why can't you? And God has taken a chance on him. He has put the image of Himself in that man and made him respect that image. Do not strike at the greatest power for good in him. If you wound it, or smother it, you have dealt him the deadliest hurt—FOR YOU HAVE SHAKEN HIS GRIP UPON GOD.

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

There was a burglar that was paroled in the custody of his pastor. When he got out of the pen the burglar had a lot of long talks with the minister. He said all his troubles had been caused by temptation, and that he was going to keep away from temptation now.

But one night the burglar was caught robbing a house. The minister could hardly believe it. He went to the jail and talked to his charge.

"See here, Owens," the minister says, "how can you throw me down this way? Didn't you tell me you wouldn't steal any more?"

"Yeah, Reverend, and I meant it, too. But you know what I told you about temptation? Well, I was on my way to have a talk with you last night, and I passed by this here house and I was overcome by the temptation to rob it. It's all temptation, Reverend. I couldn't help it."

"Yes, but how come you had your jimmy along, if you were coming to see me and just happened to be tempted?"

"Well, I carried the jimmy just in case I should be tempted. I didn't want to make a fool of myself, busting out window glass and doing the job like a tramp, in case temptation should overcome me. After all, Parson, I got my pride too."

Contrast

The farmer's girl must stay at home,
And, though gaily her lips may sing,
Her heart sometimes sighs in restless mood
As she waits what the years may bring.

But the gypsy girl goes roving far,
And free as the wind is she
To follow wherever her fancy calls,
Be it mountain crest or sea.

The farmer's girl longs for the gypsy trail
With its glamorous wandering,
And the gypsy dreams of a low, white house
Where life is a safe, sweet thing.

But neither can break the bonds of birth,
Which, stronger than human will,
Hold the farmer's lass to her daily toil,
Send the gypsy roving still.

In truth it is best that the path of each
Should be brightened by fancy's gleam,
And the life that stays and the life that goes
Heightened sometimes by a dream.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Take a joyful spirit home with you to the evening meal.

There is no member of the family who can bring so much joy into the home as Dad when he comes home from office or shop with a smile on his face and happiness in his voice.

The day may have been full of troublesome things, petty annoyances which have left those at home pretty much on edge, for home life is that way.

But when the kiddies are washed and dressed for dinner and can run to meet their father it is a relief to all to have a merry greeting from the bread winner—their Daddy.

Dad takes home a lot of sunshine and the dark clouds disappear from mother's horizon when she spies the head of the house cheerful and appreciative.

How different the home coming of the man who is known to be irritable and who is bound to be full of complaints as soon as he can find a listening ear.

Dinner may be a little late and the youngsters noisy, but is that any excuse for a man to come in with a scowl and sour words?

The home coming of dad is the keynote of the evening.

And blessed is the household that can look forward to a good humored man to sit at the head of the table and make a good dinner taste better for his kindly presence.
